THE SAMOA DISPUTE.

Prince Bismarck Receives the American Representatives.

BATES MAKES AN EXPLANATION.

The German Foreign Office Expects an Early Settlement.

BUT OTHERS ARE NOT [illegible]

Germany [illegible] Report of Great Britain's Benard's [illegible] Rejected [illegible] the Official Press.

BERLIN, April 27.—Kasson [illegible] Bates, the American delegates to the Samoan conference, called upon Bismarck this [illegible] noon.

The foreign [illegible] [illegible]. Bates was especially [illegible], who explained that the article on the Samoan question in the Century magazine were written [illegible] before he was appointed delegate to the conference [illegible] nomination he tried to withdraw the article, but it was in vain as thousands of copies had been printed.

Bismarck showed perfect familiarity with the [illegible] conference. He [illegible] the hope that the conference would [illegible]. He frequently referred to the diplomatic and parliamentary experience of Kasson and Phelps.

The first sitting was at [illegible] M. today at the foreign office.

Bates explained to Herbert Bismarck that since the publication of the other [illegible] in the White book, which showed the attitude of the German government, his article in the Century magazine, which he had written as a private and unofficial person, had lost all point. He said that he had the utmost esteem for Germany, to which country America owed much. Nothing was further from his thought than to wound either the German nation or the German government.

Bates said he desired that this statement be published, and he trusted that it would remove entirely any ill feeling toward him.

BERLIN CABLE LETTER.

Containing Interesting Information About the Samoan Conference.

Copyright by the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 27.—The members of the commission to consider the question concerning Samoa have seen Bismarck and Count Herbert Bismarck. The [illegible] fully expressed his confidence that the conference would be harmonious.

The foreign office seems to be assured of an early termination of the negotiations. The commission, however, expect that the sittings will be protracted for several months, especially if the charges against Klein are brought up. Bismarck certainly intends to place the evidence of Brandeis and Knappe and others before the conference, but he had abandoned the claims for indemnity arising from Klein's action. His concession ought to shorten the proceedings. The claim against the Samoans for plundering the German traders and planters will be maintained.

There is occasion to believe that England supports the principle of Germany's demands, and it is thought that the American delegates are empowered to admit [illegible]. The amount of indemnity is not likely to give rise to much disagreement, being more of a question as to the accuracy of the claim presented.

The foreign office's method of levy presents difficulties, and from the nature of the communications between Herbert Bismarck and the Hamburg firms interested in Samoa it is [illegible] that the indemnity will take the form of extended land concession, supervised by a land court composed of representatives from Samoa, Germany, England and the United States.

Bayard's scheme of government, which includes a royal council and legislature composed of two houses in which the three powers will be represented, will not be entertained, Bismarck adhering to the principle of non-intervention with the local government.

The official papers rather affect indifference toward the conference. The Cologne Gazette briefly concludes that a favorable result is already assured.

A strongly phrased article in the Magdeburg Gazette, a national liberal paper, is in marked contrast with the reserved tone of the general press. This paper declares that German honor requires the punishment of the assailants of December 18, and it demands protection for the planters by a permanent settlement of the whole Samoan group on the lines followed by England in Egypt. In its expansive championship the article misrepresents both the official and public feeling.

Herbert Bismarck [illegible] reception [illegible] commissioners.

A programme has been arranged for the opening of the conference Monday. Kasson and Phelps have already made a favorable impression in German and English official circles. An idea prevails in the foreign office that Phelps will become chief of the American legation.

The emperor's reception of the commissioners yesterday brought [illegible] visitors. A number of triumphal arches were erected and there were ringing of bells, [illegible] in honor of the [illegible].

[illegible] AFRICAN AFFAIRS.

[illegible] The Wissman expedition has [illegible] nothing as yet. The whole credit voted by the reichstag has been swallowed up. The [illegible] expenditure will necessitate [illegible] to the reichstag [illegible] the government calculation of the cost of its colonizing operations [illegible] prove reckless, false. Explorer Kelter, in an address at the colonial conference at Munich, declared that Captain Wissman will fail to reestablish German authority unless backed by an ample force of German troops. He predicted that Wissman's [illegible] join the Arabs. In the meantime the [illegible] of the coast [illegible] annihilated [illegible] absolute cessation of traffic.

FREEDOM OF CONSCIENCE.

Bishop Haley Says It Is Due to Catholicism, not to Puritanism.

PORTLAND, Me., April 27.—Bishop Healy of Portland, in an address to the Catholics of Maine on the occasion of the centennial of Washington's inauguration, [illegible] is a fable to attribute the establishment of freedom of conscience to the Puritans, the Cavaliers of Virginia or the Quakers. In Maryland, so long as Catholics had control of the government, that was the sole colony where freedom of [illegible].

KILLED IN THE RING.

The Fate of Tom Avery, a San Francisco Prize-Fighter.

[illegible] THE CREMORNE THEATER.

[illegible] Is He [illegible] a Murderer [illegible]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—Tom Avery, a well known local prize fighter, fell dead at an early hour this morning in the ring during a sparring exhibition with Ed Cuffe at the Cremorne theater. [illegible] in the fourth round Avery fell [illegible] to the floor, where he expired in a few minutes. Physicians said that death was due to heart failure [illegible].

HOW THE MAN WAS KILLED.

The particulars of the fight in which Avery [illegible] are as follows: Ed Cuffe was to have fought Jack Kehoe, but at the last moment Kehoe failed to put in an appearance, and the management announced that Tom Avery had consented to take the absent one's place. Painters, brokers, lawyers, doctors, men from all professions, a few from the Jackson [illegible] crowded the [illegible] and boxes of the Cremorne theater and [illegible] yelled lustily. They wanted more fighting. A moment later Avery, attired in navy blue pantaloons and stockings, stepped forth and faced Cuffe in the fight which was to be his last. For three rounds he fought [illegible] a hard blow being struck.

Then time was called for the fourth. Both men sparred for an opening. Suddenly Cuffe's right hand shot out, landing heavily on Avery's body just over the heart. Avery's hands dropped to his side, his face became deathly pale and slowly he sunk to the floor. He did not move a muscle.

The crowd yelled "get up and fight!" [illegible] Cuffe stood over him. Ten seconds went by and time was called, but Avery did not move. The attendants stepped in, [illegible] looked into his pale face and beckoned to the manager. A whispered conversation ensued and the curtain was rung down.

Then came the announcement that Avery was seriously injured. Physicians were summoned and with their attendants worked over the youth in the endeavor to bring him back to life. Their efforts were in vain. He never spoke. Only a faint gasp, a few twitchings of the muscles, and Avery had fought his last fight.

Soon after Avery died Cuffe surrendered to a policeman, who took him to the South city police station, where he was charged with murder. He was subsequently taken to the Central station. He was greatly overcome, and when locked in the cell his emotion overcame him, and he wept like a child. His appearance bears evidence that the contest in which Avery was killed was a severe one, for his face was covered with blood and bruises. His left eyebrow was badly cut, while his cheek was covered with discolorations.

When asked for his version of the affair, he said:

"Well, I can't say how it did occur. I was engaged to fight an eight-round battle with Ed Kehoe. Hallinan had agreed to give us $1, but Kehoe said he would not fight for that amount. So sooner than disappoint the audience Avery agreed to take his place. It was entirely a friendly set-to. I did not try to punish Tom, but merely tried to keep him off by hitting him body blows with my left. He countered with his left on my face, producing the knots which I have."

When in Judge Rix's court this morning an application was made by Attorney Clarke to allow Cuffe out on bail, Prosecuting Attorney Dunne objected until after the inquest.

Judge Rix said that if his recollection served him there was a statute at one time which provided that when a man was killed in a prize fight the other man was to be held for murder.

The prosecuting attorney did not know. He asked that examination of Cuffe be postponed until Monday, and it was so ordered.

THE AUTOPSY ON AVERY'S BODY.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—The autopsy on the body of Thomas Avery, who died while boxing with Ed Cuffe at the Cremorne theater last night, resulted in no cause of death being found. The brain, heart and liver were slightly congested. The doctor says death may have been caused by a blow on the pit of the stomach.

THE PASSION FOR BLOOD.

San Francisco's Low Moral Tone to Blame for the Tragedy.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—The death of Tom Avery early this morning in the Cremorne theater, one of the lowest of the variety theaters here, may possibly do something to make prize fighting unpopular. The glove contest, pure and simple, is possibly not [illegible]nable, but when it comes down to [illegible] the average brutal prize fight [illegible] those whose lot it is to chronicle the [illegible] shudder as they pen the lines [illegible] deplore the fact that the public [illegible] such scenes.

[illegible] the citizens here have been expecting that something [illegible] would have appeared [illegible] club would be [illegible] the members of the club have expected that a death would occur before this. When one of the most prominent [illegible] in the country is killed, it is possible that the public [illegible]. There may then be a revulsion of feeling, and the sporting world will learn to abhor what they now love.

It is apparent here today that the killing of Avery this morning by Ed Cuffe has caused people to stop and think more deeply of the possible consequences of prize fighting.

THE NAVAL DISASTER.

Secretary Tracy Takes a Noble View of the Catastrophe.

A LETTER TO ADMIRAL KIMBERLY

Containing Naught but Words of Praise and Commendation.

A COURT OF INQUIRY [illegible]

WASHINGTON, April [illegible].—Secretary Tracy [illegible] letter to Admiral Kimberly [illegible] the receipt of the reports from the admiral [illegible] the circumstances of the disaster at Samoa. [illegible] the secretary [illegible] "I need scarcely to [illegible] that the event [illegible] the department profound sorrow, which, as the appalling extent and character of the catastrophe became known, was reflected throughout the country. Even if the navy were [illegible] of the requisite number of ships to supply the [illegible] of the service, the loss of three of them at one blow would be a serious diminution of the available cruising [illegible] the United States through [illegible] stage of transition [illegible] is only [illegible] three [illegible] crippling force.

The department learns with deepest grief that the wreck resulted in the death of four officers and forty-seven men. However [illegible] the destruction of the vessels may be felt, the loss of so many valuable lives is a far greater and more irreparable misfortune. Captain Schoonmaker died as he had lived, at the post of duty, a gallant and generous officer and devoted servant of his country to the last.

The hurricane at Samoa has brought sorrow to many an American household which will receive the deepest sympathy of the government, yet it cannot be said that those who died thus manfully, facing danger in the execution of their duty, have died in vain."

After reviewing at some length the details of the reports and noting with satisfaction and commendation the conduct of the various officers, the secretary continues:

"It appears that the conduct of the officers [illegible] and everywhere throughout that courage, resolution and fortitude which the United States has learned always to expect from the officers and seamen of its navy. When her Britannic majesty's ship Calliope, fortunate in the possession of more powerful engines, succeeded in her gallant effort to pass the Trenton and steam out of the harbor against the hurricane, the ringing cheer from the American flagship [illegible] crew were now [illegible] in the face of death showed a spirit [illegible]. During the whole of Saturday, when the Trenton [illegible] dragging her anchors [illegible] composed and heroic bearing, and directed her movements with [illegible]. At the close of the day, when she brought up alongside of the Vandalia, her officers and men, notwithstanding the suffering through which they had passed and the dangers by which they were still surrounded, thought only of doing their utmost to assist their comrades of the Vandalia, whose distress was greater than their own, while under the inspiration of a sentiment which has awakened a response in every American heart the band of the flagship, to encourage those who [illegible] with fatigue, weakness and exposure were still clinging to the rigging, played the national anthem.

A COURT OF INQUIRY UNNECESSARY.

The secretary continues: "In reply to your request, and that of Captain Farquhar, for a court of inquiry, the department has to say that it deems such court unnecessary. It is satisfied that the officers in command at this time did their duty with courage, fidelity and judgment, and that they were zealously and loyally seconded by their subordinates; that the hurricane which caused the destruction of the vessels and the loss of so many lives was one of those visitations of Providence in the presence of which human efforts are of little avail; that the measures actually taken by yourself and the others under you were all that wisdom and prudence could dictate, and that it was due to these measures that so large a proportion of the crews were saved; that the one step which might have averted the catastrophe, namely to have put to sea before the storm had developed, could only have been justified in view of the grave responsibilities resting upon you at Samoa by certainty of overwhelming danger to your fleet, which could not then be foreseen; that you rightly decided to remain at your post, and that the department, even in the face of the terrible disaster which it involved, approves absolutely your decision, which has set an example to the navy that should never be forgotten. To convene a court of inquiry under these circumstances would seem to imply doubt on the part of the department where no doubt exists, and instead of offering an investigation it tenders to you, and through you to the officers and men of your command, its sympathy for the exposures and hardships you have encountered and its profound thanks for the fortitude with which you performed your duty in a crisis of appalling danger.

Very respectfully,

TRACY,

Secretary of the Navy."

Two Men [illegible] Attempting [illegible] a Drowning [illegible] Narrowly Escape Death [illegible]

HELENA, Mont., April [illegible].—A young man [illegible] neat [illegible] with spotless linen, a fashionable necktie and a derby hat, walked into the police station this morning and announced that he was a murderer and wanted to be taken into custody. Without waiting for any questioning he remarked, with evident nervousness, that his name was John F. McGrath, and that he had killed a friend, Henry Organ, in Midland, Maryland, in February, and had been wandering around since, fleeing first to Wheeling, W. Va., then to Columbus, Ohio, St. Louis, Omaha, Denver, Ogden and Butte before reaching Helena.

"The torture of my conscience over the terrible deed I had committed," he said, "which at times made me crazy, and made sound sleep impossible, induced me to give myself up. This has been my settled purpose for some time, but I decided on putting it off. When I reached Helena the strain became so great that I could stand it no longer, and here I am. God knows I did not mean to kill my friend. How I came to do it I shall never know, but I have suffered the tortures of the damned ever since. No punishment that the law can inflict will be greater than I have gone through already. I am ready to take the consequences."

He spoke these words with an eagerness that [illegible] to get the load off his mind. He [illegible] years of age and at the time [illegible] was [illegible] for a [illegible] company at Midland. A large hole was stove in her bottom and a crack in her hull about sixteen feet in length, through which water poured, extinguishing the engine fires. The vessel was run ashore at high tide, and when the tide fell she was found resting in a bad position on a jagged rock. The accident occurred on the [illegible] and the vessel had not been floated when the Boscowitz left the Skeena river. The Sardonyx was loaded with cannery supplies and the cargo was fairly insured, but the [illegible] will seriously inconvenience cannery men. The vessel was uninsured. IN MEMORY OF GRANT.

Banquets in Honor of the Anniversary of His Birth.

MANY PROMINENT MEN PRESENT.

General Buckner of Kentucky Pays Noble Tribute to the Dead Chieftain, and Tells of an Incident After Appomattox.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The second annual banquet in commemoration of the birth of General Grant was held tonight at Delmonico's. Hon. Chauncey M. Depew presided. One hundred and fifty guests were present. Among them were General Sherman, Attorney General Miller, Secretary Noble, Governor Buckner of Kentucky, U. S. Grant, jr., General Schofield, General Howard and Calvin S. Brice. Letters of regret were received from President Harrison, ex-President Cleveland, Vice-President Morton, Governor Hill and others.

General Buckner in his speech said that it would not be true to the Southern people if he did not say, "we love the memory of General Grant." It is fortunate for the country and fortunate for the South particularly that we did not succeed in the late contest.

The Civil Service Law Will Go Into Operation May 1

WASHINGTON, April 27.—On and after next Wednesday, May 1, the railway mail service will be subject to the civil service law, rules and regulations and all appointments to positions, other than those excepted by law, will thereafter be made only upon certification from the civil service commission.

An effort has been made to induce the president to again extend the time at which the law bringing the railway mail service under the civil service law and rules would become operative, but he has decided against further postponement.

The Heroism of American Tars

Philadelphia Press.

Mr. Thomas Donaldson said last night after reading the account of the heroism of the American sailors at Samoa: "The publication of such a story as that will do more to build up the American navy than will any amount of talking and figures. No patriotic American can read of such bravery in the face of danger without feeling proud of the men who battled with the fury of that great storm and stood calmly at their posts of duty. SOME NEW BOOKS

M[illegible] By Mary A. Livermore. A. D. Worthington & Co. [illegible]

[illegible] the well famous Mary A. Livermore [illegible] the Rebellion. We do not know when [illegible] Mrs. Livermore spent [illegible] at the front [illegible] battlefield and the [illegible] rarely paralleled [illegible] other women. Her [illegible] inner picture of the [illegible] of her own work and thrilling experience [illegible] lights and shadows [illegible]

What a wonderful work [illegible] to be forgotten [illegible] work that [illegible] for four years she held her [illegible] the sick and wounded of the rank and file.

Her book is a wholly unique work [illegible] presents the war [illegible] appropriately be termed the [illegible] of the war and this [illegible] hitherto been written. It lifts the curtain and shows how heroic and devoted [illegible] work [illegible] full of the [illegible] the most [illegible] anecdotes and incidents and through the whole runs the story of the adventures and striking experiences of its illustrious author. Stranger stories are here told than romance ever dreamed of, every one of them drawn from real life by a woman's hand. In every chapter she weaves in anecdote after anecdote, incident after incident, story after story, and the reader's attention is held breathless to the end of the volume. Should every other book on the war be blotted out of existence this one would completely reflect the spirit and work of the women of the North. In reading it our eyes were often filled with tears, at other times we were convulsed with laughter at its rich humor. Such a work by so eminent an author, at whose feet hundreds of thousands have sat and listened in admiration and wonder, whose power, wisdom, influence and fame are now world wide, is the literary event of our times.

Mr. S. W. Butler has the agency of Mrs. Livermore's work for Portland and Multnomah county. It is a work of sterling merit and will be read over and over again by old and young with increasing pleasure and lasting profit, and will be prized by all.

LITERARY NOTES

Any books noticed under this head may be obtained from J. K. Gill & Co.

A neat volume in Brentano's Romantic Library series is Frederick Stanther's Romance, by Albert [illegible] a very well written, but a sad and oppressive story.

Macmillan & Co. have just ready F. Marion Crawford's latest novel, "Greifenstein," the scene of which is laid in South Germany, principally in the Black Forest. Some charming bits of German university life are given.

A Modern Mephistopheles, which was originally published in the "No Name Series," now appears with Louisa M. Alcott's name on the title-page. Mephistopheles, Faust, Margaret and Martha are faintly shadowed forth in the four characters of the story, which is [illegible] tender and high purposed. The [illegible] unlooked for dexterity [illegible] a difficult subject. (Roberts Bros.)

PORTLAND, SUNDAY, APRIL 28.

It was not 2158 cars but 28 cars that the lumber cargo of a vessel dispatched from Portland, Maine, to Buenos Ayres would have loaded.

Vermont boasts a run of 127 days straight sleighing and proudly asks some other place to match it. Labrador could no doubt do it, with a few days to spare.

There are signs of the intrusion of railroad schemes into the campaign for election of delegates to the constitutional convention in Washington territory. It wouldn't take much of this kind of thing to give the democrats control of the convention.

A cork trust is the latest. This business has but one more station to make. When it extends to the cork screw the long oppressed people will rise in their wrath and ditch the long combination train the object of which is to starve all who will not get aboard and wreck those who do.

The people of Lakeview are quite anxious to know who will be their next postmaster. From present indications that officer will be a postmistress—a possibility that is gall and wormwood to a number of men who aspire to the dignity and hunger for the emoluments of the position.

In a local item in THE OREGONIAN some days ago it was inadvertently stated that George H Williams was elected to the United States senate to succeed Benjamin Stark. The correct statement would be that B. F. Harding was elected to succeed Stark while Williams was elected to succeed Harding.

In the upper counties of the Willamette valley a petition is being circulated and numerously signed urging upon the managers of the Southern Pacific company the great need of the early completion of the west side railroad from Corvallis to Junction where the west and east side branches were originally intended to connect.

The claim of Miss Bridgeford, a teacher in the public schools of this city, for salary for time lost during the prevalence of smallpox last fall raises an interesting question. She was ready to comply with the terms of her contract but was restrained from so doing by a rule of the school board, her employers, the enforcement of which is considered necessary for the public safety.

It seems that Pope Leo considers it incumbent upon him to interpose his authority to prevent the ear of the Almighty from being offended by an application for a blessing upon King Humbert of Italy. It may be possible that his holiness is taking up a personal quarrel or airing a personal grievance in the name of the Lord. At all events people who do not accept the vice regency and contingent claims of Leo XIII will persist in this view of the matter.

We publish this morning two very interesting private letters written by the Hon George Thacher to his wife about one hundred years ago. One gives a description of the city of New York as it then was and the other tells of the inauguration of President Washington. These letters, which are now first published, are in the possession of Judge Thacher's granddaughter, the wife of Capt G A Carpenter, 14th U. S. infantry, commanding Fort Klamath.

Has it come to this. A white man whipped in the prize ring by a negro. Even the most bitter opponents of the emancipation proclamation did not expect disgrace and disaster equal to this. Pete Jackson (colored) of Australia, finished Patsey Cardiff of Minneapolis in ten rounds. Let any one who can view unmoved the spectacle of the American eagle with its bruised head in the bloody mire at the feet of a foreign negro read the details of the fight and answer if he can the grave question: What is the world and especially the United States coming to.

The Chicago Tribune's Washington specials (April 22) contain the following about Voorhees of Washington territory:

It was Voorhees who protested against the appointment of Young Butcher to the treasury special agency. Voorhees said the man was a thief and his appointment would be a disgrace to the administration. Cleveland told Voorhees not to talk in that way and there were some warm words about the matter. Last week when Butcher's peculations became known to all he said Voorhees reminded Cleveland that inasmuch as the president who had appointed Butcher [illegible] the duty of the man who [illegible] dignity [illegible] government [illegible] Mr. [illegible] manner [illegible].

In September next [illegible] will occur the [illegible] in America [illegible] verse [illegible] be celebrated in a proper manner under the auspices of [illegible] the United States [illegible] circular [illegible] through all the country. Since the [illegible] sight to allow this occasion to pass without hearing attention. A large and important part in all celebrations is delegated to the newspapers of the country and the [illegible] in which they should and doubtless will interest themselves vigorously.

Lane county needs public buildings, is able to have them and her taxpayers are apparently willing to be called upon for the money necessary to supply the long felt want. The only reason that that county does not have a new courthouse and jail seems to be identical with the excuse of the old lady who did not do her house cleaning from year to year. She did not get at it. There is this to be said of Lane county in this connection: Its grand juries have done their part manfully in the premises, having regularly for eight years past reported the jail insecure and unfit for the purpose for which it is used and the courthouse inadequate to the requirements of the county. Oregonians are strangely akin in matters of this kind. They do not exhaust themselves with hurry and are almost unanimously of the opinion that what they have if not quite as good as they would like will do.

Grangers are in earnest in the matter of resistance to the twine trust. They have announced through their order in various places that they will buy no binding twine of the combination that seeks to control it and furthermore that they will buy no machinery or other goods from firms that handle the trust's twine. If they are in a situation to enforce this declaration they are just liable in making it and providing they are strong enough will deal a heavy blow to the combination the action of which has aroused their just indignation. They recall the fact that until within a few years harvesting was done without the aid of the twine binder and are strong in the belief that it can be done without it again. The chief difficulty in the way of the exercise of this spirit of independence is in the fact that the twine-binder has so largely supplanted the old farming machinery that there is not enough of the latter in working order to save the grain.

THE FIRST INAUGURATION

The approach of the centennial of the inauguration of George Washington first president of the United States turns the thoughts of the people of the nation backward to the events of that time with a display of interest that mocks the assertion that the patriotism of the people is waning. History has been searched and tradition recalled for incidents of that time a century ago when the trusted and victorious leader of the continental armies took the oath of office as president of the new born republic. The preliminaries that preceded this event, noted by the light of experience that has since settled all minor questions, stand out in the strong light of history as the conscientious efforts of wise and careful men to place the constitution upon a basis that would stand the test of time and circumstance and result in a triumph for the grand principle of self government. How well they succeeded the proud record of the country tells.

The contentions between Federalists and anti Federalists that had preceded the choice of president and vice president were bitter and uncompromising. All was however at last adjusted, the principle of majority rules was quietly acknowledged and sixty nine electors met on the first Wednesday in February 1789 to make choice of president and vice president of the United States. It was the duty of each of these to write upon his ballot two names. The candidate receiving the highest vote was to be declared the choice for president, the second highest was to be vice president. Whatever differences the people and their electors held upon the merits of the constitution in matters of minor detail there was unanimity when it came to the choice of president. There was practically but one man considered for the place and Washington received the entire sixty nine votes of the first electoral college. There were ten candidates for vice president, it being the policy of the convention to scatter its vote so as to keep the election out of the house of representatives. John Adams was the choice of the people for vice president but, had he received the entire vote, as did Washington there would have been a tie which would have thrown the choice into the house. Adams received but thirty four votes, not as many, by thirty as he might have received in safety, and as he doubtless would have had had there been entire certainty that Washington would have received the full vote.

It is curious in noting the political conditions of those times to see how the franchise was hedged about in different sections of the young republic. With freedom as its boasted corner stone suffrage was by no means universal. It belonged to the wealthy or at least to the relatively well to do classes. The poor were excluded by property qualifications which differed in different states: here it was fifty acres of land or personal property to the value of thirty pounds; there it was subjected to a race qualification, and property aggregating ten pounds in value. In one state it was a poll tax merely; in another the voter must be quiet and well disposed with a freehold worth forty shillings or personal property valued at forty pounds. South Carolina insisted on a belief in God and in a future state of rewards and punishments in addition to the ownership of fifty acres of land. In New York, the state where ignorance, fraud and corruption now holds the balance of power in naming a president, the voter was then required to be seized of lands to the value of twenty pounds or pay a house rent of forty shillings yearly, have his name in the list of tax payers and a tax receipt in his pocket. While the effect of these restrictions was to deprive many worthy men of the privilege of voting it yet operated to shut out of political control the thriftless vicious, purchasable element that has for years to a large extent dominated American politics. And it is a grave question to many minds whether the unlimited extension of the franchise is after all an improvement upon these early restrictions.

The electoral college concluded its business in the choice of president and vice president, and preparations for the inauguration in New York were soon begun. The work of placing Federal hall in a condition that was fit for the occasion was at once commenced and pushed vigorously forward.

Washington left his home at Mount Vernon on the 16th of April for New York. He was driven in his own carriage which was delayed every few miles first by his neighbors and afterward by the officials of the towns and cities through which he passed, who gathered by the roadside or met him at their gates with expressions of confidence and addresses of welcome and adulation. Baltimore, Philadelphia and Trenton vied with each other in the heartiness of the welcome that they gave the president-elect; triumphal arches with pretty devices and mottoes breathing patriotism and devotion were erected under which he drove, escorted by city officials and state militia, and flowers were strewn in his path by bevies of little girls as they sang "Welcome to the mighty chief."

At Elizabethtown a barge was provided to carry him to New York. This barge was rowed by thirteen harbor pilots and was followed by a train of boats bearing the few officers of the old confederation who had not yet been supplanted by the new. As the presidential barge neared the city it was [illegible] by a fleet of river craft gay with flags, [illegible] in the harbor fired a salute of thirteen guns, answered by the [illegible] North Carolina with a like salute and [illegible] the crowd on shore mingled [illegible] greeting of welcome.

The president was met upon landing by the governor and members of congress and escorted by troops was taken to the house prepared for him. Owing to the still unfinished state of Federal hall the inauguration was put off for a week after his arrival and during this time the city was given up to demonstrations of joy.

The 30th of April came at last, and all was in readiness. As a fitting preliminary, the people by thousands repaired early to the churches to offer up prayer for the divine guidance of the president. Mr Adams had been inaugurated four days before and awaited the coming of his chief in the senate chamber and upon his arrival formally presented him to the two houses of congress and informed him that the time to take the oath of office had come. Repairing to the balcony of Federal hall Washington stood with head uncovered surrounded by the most illustrious sons of the new republic, and placing his hand upon the Book held by Robert R. Livingston took from him the required oath of office. Livingston, who was at that time chancellor of the state of New York, then turned to the multitude that filled the streets and crowded the house tops and exclaimed "Long live George Washington, president of the United States," and the assembled masses rent the air with a shout of welcome and cheers for the first president.

With the ceremonies incident to the inauguration of the twenty second president fresh in the minds of the people it is easy to draw comparisons and note the changes that a century has wrought. This will be the pastime of thousands of people, when the 30th of April 1889 sends greeting back ward across a century to the 30th of April, 1789 and duplicates an hundredfold the shouts of the long silent host that gave boisterous greeting to the first executive.

The seventieth anniversary of the introduction of Odd Fellowship into America was celebrated by the order on the 26th inst. in many parts of the state. The familiar story of the small beginnings of the order when in 1819 it was established in Baltimore by five men, the leader of whom was Thomas Wildey, has been again recited, and statistics showing its astonishing growth have been submitted. Its membership in the United States is now over half a million and its revenues last year were six and a half million dollars. Something like one third of this sum belonged to the relief fund. The public can readily believe that the careful conscientious disbursement of this large sum among sick and afflicted members and their families has furnished timely aid to many worthy and deserving persons. The growth of the order has been retarded in this state and presumably in the nation by rival organizations having like social and benevolent features but it is strongly intrenched in the affections of its membership and if it does not make rapid increase it yet holds its own in a country where "lodges" of various organizations are so numerous that there are not nights enough in the week to accommodate them separately.

The superintendent of the Philadelphia Kennel Club show says that while some of the vicious dogs on exhibition were ugly when men attempted to pat them the touch of a woman's hand was welcomed by the most savage brute among them. This is either a pretty fiction which women who are afraid of hydrophobia would do well not to attempt to transfer to the prosaic domain of fact or it is disparaging to certain other animals who make much more pretension to gentility than is made for dogs.

COLORING BUTTER—WHAT A LADY HAS TO SAY

PORTLAND, April 21.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

I see by the Rural Spirit of April 18 that the editor has an article on coloring butter, and in it he wants to know what the science of butter making has to do with a fraud. It is the first time he ever knew science to recognize deception or anything artificial. In the same issue he has an advertisement of butter color. I would like to know if that is consistency.

He also says, if butter was properly made from good butter cows it would be a rich golden color. If Mr Baker can show people how to make good yellow butter in winter on hay and mill feed, with common cows, he had better go at the business. Any farmer that has fed cows, or any farmer's wife that has made butter, knows it cannot be done with common cows. Guernseys or Jerseys will do it, but there are very few farmers who have them, nor can they afford to have them. It was not Mr Baker's fault that the Oregon legislature did not pass a law last winter to make coloring butter a crime without having it marked as such.

Such a law would be a great injury to the farmers of Oregon for butter can be shipped up from California in winter when they have grass and Oregon has to depend on hay and mill feed and have white butter while what is shipped in would be yellow, and he knows that people will buy yellow butter whenever they can get it. There is but one class of men whom that law would benefit at all and they can well afford to live without making butter.

I honestly believe if Mr Baker would stop and think awhile he would not want a law to prohibit the coloring of butter, for there would not be any butter color advertisement in his paper then, and that would hurt him more than all the butter he will eat the rest of his life with coloring in it.

[illegible]

I am willing to shoulder the responsibility of the sale of West Portland lots, together with any and all suburbs and additions sold by me. When I thoroughly believe in a locality, to me that means success. Ten years ago I sold South Portland lots for $100 and $300 each. Three fourths of the people said, "Too dear, never be worth the money, etc.," and yet these same lots now bring $1500 to $3000 each. We next sold off Cole's addition. The same "ha ha" was heard and the same advance in values followed. Next "Garden Home" was thrown on the market, "Scholl's Ferry Crossing" and "Shattuck's Station" all receiving the same skeptical sneer and "ha ha," and yet 33 to 50 per cent. has been made per annum on the investment. We next launched Sellwood on the market. This addition or suburb created a big howl from our friends. We sold four lots per day for a year at the same, and those who bought have realized 50 per cent. per annum on their investments. Now we come with West Portland, and so far we have sold more lots than we did in Sellwood in the same length of time. In view of the above facts it is not necessary for me to offer an apology for selling these lots. It may not be altogether proper to make at this point comparisons, and yet we cannot refrain from saying that West Portland, in time, will be a much more desirable suburb and a nice place to live than any of those we have mentioned. "West Portland is, without question, the sightliest and most attractive locality or plat on the market. It is well understood that a motor line will be built to it, and when this is accomplished those who have bought will make a nice clean up, 200 or 500 per cent. on their investment."

MOTOR LINE

We take pleasure in announcing the fact that the railroad iron has been bought for the road and will be on the ground in 60 days, and the road will be graded and the track laid in sixty, 100 or 150 days. That is what we want to do. We intend, also, if things work to our plans, to advance the price of these lots to $400 and $500 each on or before December 1, 1889.

We own 1200 lots in West Portland. Of these 600 are put in the "pool." We also own 640 acres of land in Tillamook county. This we divide into eight 80 acre lots, 600 town lots, 50x100 feet, and eight timber lots of 80 acres each, make up the pool of 608 lots, sold at $120 each. You divide these among yourselves in November or December. We now offer lots in the POOL for $120, payable $10 down and $10 per month without interest. This price will last only for a short time, not over 30 days. If you can spare $10, $20 or $30 per month you can not find on this coast any such an opportunity as this to make certain and big profits. We will make West Portland a big success.

Cold-Blooded Logic

"The highest price resident lots are always found on the side of the river where the heavy business is done and lots on high elevated ground, made acceptable by cable or motor line always bear the highest price. If these things be so no man dare dispute it, it follows that residence property on the west side of the river is selling much below its actual value. The point we make, or seek to make, is that the west side $120 lots are worth $200, $300 or $500 each. Take this thought. The West Portland $120 lots, for instance, are not so far from Morrison street as the $6500 lots at or near Golden Gate Park (S. F.) are from Oakland ferry landing at foot of Market street, and while San Francisco may be four times larger than Portland, $6500 is 54⅙ times greater than $120. With equal facilities for reaching West Portland and Golden Gate Park, which will come in five months or less, then West Portland lots should be worth one-fourth as much as lots at Golden Gate Park, or $1625 each. If this be a logical conclusion it follows that great fortunes can be made by investing in real estate and in West Portland in particular.—Pacific Express.

West Portland is HIGH LAND and on the right side of the river. West Portland lots will be advanced by December 1, 1889, to $400 and $500 each. Don't forget this. West Portland will have a Motor line before that date. One, two, three and four hundred per cent. can be made in a short time on West Portland lots, all the same as was made in South Portland, Cole's Addition and Sellwood. West Portland and Mount Tabor are equal distance from the court house. Ten dollars discount for cash, or $110 cash gets a paid up bond. Send postoffice orders. Address

FOR SALE—LOTS AT MOUNT TABOR—A GREAT WANT SUPPLIED.

BEAUTIFUL SCENERY—RICH SOIL—ABUNDANT WATER—EXHILARATING CLIMATE—NO COLD WINTER WINDS—EASY ACCESS TO TOWN.

These are seven unique reasons why you should buy a lot in the first property at Mount Tabor to be laid off in lots. Auburn Park is beautifully situated on the western slope of Mount Tabor and within a few minutes' walk of both motor lines. Purchase promptly. Procrastination is dangerous for what is cheap to-day will be dear to-morrow, as the demand for lots will increase when the Sunnyside and Hawthorne Avenue Motor lines are opened and numbers of people are carried to Mount Tabor to realize the great advantages offered.

Delay will be expensive, so if you have $200 in cash ask the agents,

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

ELEGANT VESTIBULE SLEEPERS.—Mr. F. E. Rice, superintendent of the Pullman Palace cars, arrived here yesterday from the East, by way of the Sound. He left yesterday afternoon overland for California. Mr. Rice comes on business connected with the car company. In this connection it might be stated that all arrangements have been made by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company for putting on elegant new vestibule sleeping cars over their lines. This new and important departure to the travelling public will go into effect May 1. These elegant coaches will be put on the route between St. Paul and Minneapolis and Tacoma and Portland. Each sleeper will have a colored porter, and there will be no extra charge over the ordinary sleepers. Vestibule sleepers will be attached to all regular daily trains coming West and going East. With these sleepers, and first-class dining car service, the company claim that in respect to ease, comfort, safety and rapidity, and completeness of appointment, the Northern Pacific is second to no other line on the continent.

A WORK OF ART.—In the window of S. and G. Gump, on First street, may be seen a work, that for excellence in design and artistic effect, possesses rare merit. It is a tiling for a hearth, executed by Mrs. Eugene D. White. The entire piece is five feet by two. The center represents a flight of swallows, while the border is composed of a large variety of butterflies, whose wings of many hues, present in the contrast with the blue-winged swallows, a very brilliant effect. The plumage and movements of the birds have been very carefully studied by the artist, while the tout ensemble of the work is true in every detail. The birds, butterflies, and grasses are drawn from, and true to, nature. The handsome surface glazing is well worth mention also, as the firing of this grade of China, is of such a delicate nature, as to render it exceedingly difficult to arrive at the exact point where the heat will leave the China in such perfect condition as this is. This tiling is for a mantel, to be placed in Mr. White's residence on Thirteenth and Taylor streets.

DEATH OF THE BABY SEAL.—The small baby seal sent to the city park several weeks ago, is no more. It just closed its eyes and passed in its checks. The exact cause of its death is not known. It is certain, however, that it did not die of old age. Several workmen who were near the seal at the time it died, heard it make a noise that sounded just a little like "high price of fish, selah!" This is all that is known, and the rest must ever remain a mystery. The large seal put in the park with the "Babe," the first one taken to the tank, is also reported on the sick list. Its illness is attributed to the sudden change from salt water to the less saline aqua pura that supplies the city park. Should it, too, follow in the footsteps of the small one, it may become necessary to rescind the order recently issued to fishermen, asking that no more seals be sent to the city park.

OFFICIAL VIGILANCE.—While the police court was in session yesterday afternoon, some one helped himself to an umbrella that had been left in the private office of the police judge, and, unobserved, he made way with it. When the court adjourned, the owner naturally went after that much needed article, but he looked and looked in vain. Officer Griffin at once got on the track of the missing umbrella, and in less than four minutes returned it to the overjoyed owner, who had just about reached a point in his unholy reflections upon the aggravated nature of the theft, where he was undecided whether to swear or not to swear. Owing to the fact that the man who so unceremoniously appropriated the umbrella, had sufficient feeling in his heart not to take all in the room, he will not be prosecuted.

BASEBALL AT FOREST GROVE.—The baseball team of Bishop Scott Academy took a spin out to Forest Grove yesterday and crossed bats with a local nine and were defeated by a score of 20 to 19. They played in a field where the grass was one foot high and wet at that, but in other respects they fared fairly well and did not have much trouble in keeping track of the ball. The pitchers were Curtis and Watt for the Portlanders, and McNamee for the home team, catchers, Gavin and Ellsworth for the visitors and [illegible] ond inning Gavin's head was cut, the ball breaking one of the wires of the mask and pressing it inward. He went to centerfield and Ellsworth took his place behind the bat.

KICKED BY A HORSE.—George E. Lawrence, a driver employed by the Mount Hood Laundry Company, was severely if not seriously hurt in a runaway accident yesterday morning. Just as he jumped into the seat with a bundle on Third and E streets, he dropped the lines, and when he reached down to pick them up one of the horses kicked him on the head, making a long V-shaped scalp wound. He fell dazed beneath the wheels, which made two more wounds in his scalp and bruised his right arm. He was taken to the Portland hospital, and Dr. Rand, who was summoned, said that his skull was intact. Lawrence was resting easy last night.

PASSED THE EXAMINATION.—Captain U. Sebree, after having passed a successful examination for lieutenant commander, U. S. N., at the Mare Island navy yard, California, is expected to return home to-day. There is not yet any certainty as to who will be his successor as United States lighthouse inspector for this district. Neither is it known where Captain Sebree will have his headquarters in his new capacity of lieutenant commander, U. S. N.

MISS SOPHIA SEIP announces with pleasure her return, and resumes the teaching in divine science of spiritual health and healing and intuitional soul culture, including special course in physical culture, Delsarte system, calesthenics, diet and dress. The deceased is a brother-in-law of Frank Habersham. He leaves a family who are away on a visit in the east.

TWO MEN DECLARED INSANE.—Jacob Peterson, a native of Denmark, 33 years old, was adjudged insane yesterday. Illness of long standing is the cause of his insanity. His hallucination is that he is about to die. He has attempted to commit suicide. N. P. Larsen, a native of Denmark, 34 years old, was also pronounced insane. Larsen has a habit of standing in one place and turning around on his heel for hours at a time.

A FINE DISPLAY.—The Portland Carriage and Manufacturing Company now have on exhibition several carloads of the finest carriages ever before seen in this city. These include five glass landaus and a very large variety of other styles just opened up, and all built under their direct supervision. It will well repay all admirers of fine work of this class to give this well known company a call.

THREATENS TO MURDER HIS FAMILY.—Mrs. William Wilkes, who lives ten miles east of the city, complained to County Judge Catlin yesterday that her husband had been drinking hard for some time, and had been carrying a pistol and had threatened to kill himself and family. She thought he was crazy, and requested that he be arrested. An officer was detailed to arrest him.

The building is to be erected on the north side of Fifteenth street, between N and O streets.

SUDDEN CHANGE IN THE WEATHER.—The present cold wave was caused by the arrival of a car of the unequaled Simmons's patent refrigerators for Olds & Summers, which they are selling below zero. Remember Olds & Summers have the largest assortment of refrigerators in the city, and they guarantee the lowest prices. Call and see them before buying, at 183 First street.

FOREST GROVE NOTES.

FOREST GROVE, April 27.

Whatever of interest this part of the country may have had a few weeks ago for fear of a drouth has all been dispelled by the good old fashioned rains that have been falling of late. The old settlers ought not to worry over such things, as the lesson has been taught them over and over again that Oregon never fails. She can be depended upon every time.

The action taken by our town council at its last session in passing an ordinance licensing a billiard saloon with cider, soda, etc., which is now in full blast, meets with much severe criticism. Forest Grove is notably a school town, and it is not considered the part of wisdom to nourish an institution that can in no wise aid in promoting the best interests of the community, and particularly of the schools which are the pride of our people. The paltry revenue of $25 is not thought sufficient for the action taken. Double that amount could have been easily raised by subscription had it been necessary.

Strangers flock into Forest Grove at the rate of from forty to fifty a week.

Forest Grove is becoming quite a show town. As many as half a dozen companies have played here within the past two weeks, all drawing good houses. The Royce-Lansing Comedy Company are billed for to-morrow evening, and judging from the tickets already sold they will play to a jammed house.

Wild strawberries were gathered near town yesterday.

The prospect for an abundance of fruit is most encouraging. The foliage on tree and shrub is so far advanced as to form ample protection against even a severe frost.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. M. G. Wolf and daughter Mrs. M. Franklin, of San Francisco, are in the city, the guests of H. Wolf.

General Freight Agent Campbell, of the O. R. & N. Co., returned yesterday from a ten days' tour of inspection to Puget sound and Victoria.

Mr. Edward Norton, chief clerk in the superintendent's office, O. R. & N. Co., will leave Wednesday for London and will be gone eight weeks. He will sail from New York on the Umbria May 8.

Mr. J. F. Eshelman, one of the prominent men of Seattle, returned yesterday from a two and one-half months' tour of the Eastern states. Mr. Eshelman, on his arrival in Seattle, will relieve his colleague in business, Mr. W. H. Llewellyn, who will in turn take a trip through the Eastern states himself.

SALES OF REAL ESTATE.

The Uncertain Weather Interferes Somewhat With the Volume of Business.

The following special report of the real estate market is furnished THE OREGONIAN by J. Fred Clark & Sons, real estate agents:

The transactions of the weeks corresponding to the past one were in—

	Deeds.	Amount.
1887	75	$124,719 00
1888	76	147,976 00
1889	103	354,928 00

Since January 1, to date, there have been filed 2192 deeds aggregating $4,505,082 97.

The market continues to be affected by the uncertain weather, and the past week has been a repetition of the preceding weeks in the month, although a little better showing has been made, and is accounted for in the fact that there have been two or three pleasant days during the week.

The inquiry for properties of all kinds has been much better than during the two previous weeks, and we feel confident that the old activity will begin again when the sunshine comes.

Newcomers are still coming into our state from all points, and we are glad to note the fact that many of them are stopping at points along the railroad and spreading out into the interior, taking up homesteads and pre-emption claims in sections that have been deemed worthless only for the timber that might be culled from them. Some of these enterprising settlers will show in a very few years that there is good land lying under the forests of Oregon that will raise fruits and grain in large quantities and of the best quality.

Yesterday there were filed 13 deeds aggregating $42,455, an average of $3265, making the total number of deeds filed since the first of the month 470, value of the transactions, $1,287,881 00.

PORTLAND, SUNDAY, APRIL 28.

OUR NATIONAL BANK SYSTEM.

It is common to read in the newspapers and to hear from public speakers words reflecting on the national banks as a gigantic monopoly that spreads its baleful wings over the nation and imposes its own terms on the money market of the country. It is said that banks enjoy peculiar privileges and have often immense sums of government money on deposit that makes them powerful agents for manipulating that market. A brief look at the whole question must interest the public and may be of use in giving correct information concerning the system as a whole and certain banks as individuals.

The national bank system is free to all who wish to accept the protection and guarantees which the national banking system affords. Any set of men can file their papers, make their proper deposit of national bonds, receive bank notes in return for ninety per cent. of the face of the bonds and commence loaning money and receiving deposits. The system has been in existence for many years and very few instances have occurred where depositors have lost money and none are remembered where they did not get the most of their money back again. The system is so perfectly organized and well guarded that losses are infrequent and greater safety cannot well be secured by any human system. It has become a necessity, as it affords greater security than any other known system.

The bank pays for engraving the plate on which its notes are printed and the government furnishes the notes. The bank is obliged to retain five per cent. of its circulation on hand at Washington for a redemption fund, as its notes are continually presented at the treasury and if found unfit for circulation they are utterly destroyed and new notes, that are of course unsigned, are sent to replace them. The unsigned notes are sent by registered letter, while the good notes redeemed are returned by Adams & Co's express.

If a bank has $100,000 capital it purchases government bonds for deposit at the treasury. The 3 per cent. bonds are now all gone and only 4 per cents. and 4½ per cents. are to be had. These are held by bankers at a high price, because banks must have them and are obliged to pay any price asked for them. The other day 4 per cent. bonds, due 1907, in thirteen years, were quoted at $1.29½; bonds drawing 4½ per cent. due in 1891, or in two years, command $1.08, or within one per cent. of the total interest to accrue. It will be seen that when the bank pays one per cent. annual tax on circulation, which is required of them, they have very little profit on circulation, or none at all. This is all the tax required of the national government, but stock-holders pay the tax levied under the state government on the stock they hold. It will be seen that while $100 of bonds bearing a heavy premium are deposited in the national treasury, costing about $130, they only receive $85 to circulate, on which they pay half per cent. tax semi-annually, in January and July.

Complaint is made that national banks are favored with immense deposits from the treasury on which they speculate. There are national depositories through the country, but if there is a deposit made in one of them the bank has to purchase bonds for the full amount of the deposit with the treasury as security. If $100 is deposited here, the bank must buy government bonds at $108 or $130, to deposit against it. To receive $100 and have to expend $128 to $130 for the privilege of having it, with the possibility at the time before them of being called on to [illegible]

It will be seen that national banks are made to subserve the convenient pleasure of the government and do not have entirely a "soft thing." There is a responsibility and character about the national bank system that bankers like to possess and that satisfies the great public as they feel safe to deal with an institution whose finances are continually under the eye of the government. We will proceed to show how government bonds control over the banks and what it requires of them as security for the execution of their trusts.

Five times a year, at the call of the government, every national bank has to publish a statement of its affairs. For this purpose a daily statement is kept in a book, so when the order from Washington comes to publish a statement of the standing of the bank on a certain day gone by, the statement is made as it stood on the book of that day, and the order comes at unknown times. If three days shall pass without the statement being published, the bank is fined $100 to teach it punctuality and to obey orders according to law.

We often hear of fires in which there is a heavy loss of bank notes. There are steamers lost and in various ways losses of bank notes occur by land and by sea. The natural supposition is that such losses inure to the benefit of the bank, but such is not the case. The government has all the benefit of such losses. Even if the bank loses notes unsigned, as when they are stolen, the government has charged the bank with the paper and the bank has to make it good. No one [illegible] a bank note except to see that it has a genuine [illegible], etc., and often notes are circulated and redeemed that never were signed. They circulate everywhere without question as to where they are from. When they become worn they go back to the treasury and are redeemed, and even when no signatures are affixed they are paid.

A singular fact is stated when the numbers of bank notes were limited. Then at one [illegible] its notes were immediately at a premium. No other bank could take its place until its notes were redeemed and there was always some one [illegible] to go into banking. Whenever [illegible] majority of the notes of the [illegible] bank could go out in its place, which made the bills of banks that had failed [illegible] a premium, something not easy to comprehend without [illegible] reason. There are many points of interest [illegible] and some quite amusing in connection with national banks.

The [illegible] officer [illegible] liable to drop in on the banks at any moment [illegible] the year this officer [illegible] very [illegible] and independent [illegible] always [illegible] work. [illegible] he takes possession of [illegible] goes down [illegible] through the rest of [illegible] all the notes [illegible] law in every [illegible] in place and [illegible]. Then he goes through [illegible] the system is properly [illegible] down in the laws. He [illegible] and you think he [illegible] confidentially [illegible]. All the correspondence with the government is carefully gone over, as well as all business correspondence. Like an old [illegible] he turns over the leaves of the letter books and reads a letter here and there [illegible] the same old smile [illegible] and you flatter yourself when he goes that he has neither seen [illegible] nor [illegible] commission. He does [illegible] leave when he has examined books, vaults and safes, and the general equipment of the institution, and he wears the same smile as long as you can see him. After he has left [illegible] you learn that he has asked many interesting questions and studied facts that bear upon the bank and its customers. One peculiarity about the bank examiner is his want of sociability. Aside from that bland smile and an occasional word he is unapproachable. As the Scotchman says: "He is not company for man or beast." You feel inclined to do the ordinary courteous deeds customary among gentlemen, but he declines to smoke, and he does not drink. He declines, with all possible courtesy, your invitation to dinner. There is no way you can be sociable or friendly with him, more than by the mere exchange of words. The solution is that he is bound to hold himself independent of the banker he examines and maintain so exclusive and separate a relation with all concerned that no possible taint of corruption can attach.

After awhile you hear from Washington and understand the notes in the little book, you have made a loan that has not the security required by law; your books are not comme il faut; various things have to be explained, but you could not explain them to him. He examined, but did not ask many questions. You are a little surprised to see how acute he was, and how completely he knew his business. This picture of the bank examiner deserves to be drawn with a skillful hand, for he is a unique character, and well worth a clear portrayal.

The time is approaching when there will not be government bonds to answer the purpose of the banks and it is a nice question to decide how they shall be sustained, for such a banking system is invaluable. Ex-Comptroller Trenholm proposed creating a bond drawing 2½ per cent. expressly for the banks at their face value. All the bonds required by the banks for securing circulation can be issued at this nominal interest, or at no interest probably, and notes issued for the full amount. Some such plan should be adopted for it would effect two very important measures: Supply security that the banks will be glad to buy, and refund our national debt at a nominal rate of interest that will be no burden and the debt thus created will come near being a national blessing.

CARRYING THE WAR INTO AFRICA.

From the result of the prize fight between the Australian negro, Jackson, and the Minnesota bull dog, Cardiff, it begins to look as if it didn't pay a white ruffian to "carry the war into Africa," when the African was sure of fair play. It is quite comforting, however, to a decent man, who has for years seen the brute white man murder, mutilate and curse the "nigger," to notice that when the "nigger" gets fair play he can now and then beat his persecutors on their own ground, that of brute courage, skill and endurance. The democratic ruffians, North and South, that have for years mobbed and bobbed and thumped the negro when they had him at disadvantage of numbers, must feel cheap to note, that in their own chosen field of ferocious, bull dog, brainless, brute violence, the negro is found who can beat them at their own game. It is amusing to hear white brutes, like Sullivan, say, "No gentleman will meet a 'dirty nagir' in the ring." Hereafter we may expect to hear Phryne denounce Aspasia, see Nell Gwynne make faces at Madame de Pompadour, or hear of Henry Ward Beecher in the next world refusing to salute the mighty shade of the amorous Alexander Hamilton. This big brute Sullivan, who scorns to meet a "nigger" in the ring declines to meet him in the only domain where he can pretend to equal the negro. The negro is sober while Sullivan is a sot; the negro is humane in his treatment of women and children and domestic animals, while Sullivan is a wife-beater, a cuffer of newsboys and a clubber of helpless horses; the negro is fairly intelligent and well behaved, while Sullivan is as ignorant and turbulent as a worthless Swash. And yet in the only field where they don't dare meet him. A brute white man that will draw the color line in such an infamous business as prize-fighting is the most ludicrous kind of a dude. The white prize-fighter is reduced to the lowest terms of humiliation when he virtually says, "I am a bulldog and a brute by profession, but I am a white bulldog and I will fight no black bulldog unless I am sure I can whip him."

Really the ordinary citizen, who does not desire to smash anybody's jaw or get his own smashed, is of the opinion that while God could doubtless have made a bigger coward and more contemptible creature than the average prize-fighter; yet he never did.

DEATH OF THE TEMPORAL POWER.

Our dispatches of yesterday announced that the pope had reproved Father Agostino for a recent sermon in which he invoked the divine blessing upon King Humbert of Italy and ordered the offending priest to leave Rome. The report is doubtless true, because it is due to the arms of King Humbert's father, Victor Emanuel, and to the civil policy inaugurated by him and continued by his son, that the temporal power of the pope has been obliterated from Italy. The historical facts in the case are worth reciting.

The present minister of Italy, Crispi, is strongly anti-clerical in his sentiments. When Leo XIII. was elected Crispi informed the sacred college that while the liberty of the conclave should be respected if it was held out of Rome he would instantly occupy the Vatican. When the present pope began his reign he found the papacy in a very feeble state of health. His predecessor, Pius IX., had forbidden the clergy and all good Catholics to take any direct part in politics, even while still sovereign of Rome, and after the loss of his temporal power, in 1870, he still clung to this absurd position. The present pope, who is a very able and astute man, at once took steps to restore the papacy to its former dignity and influence and with a degree of success that stamps him as a statesman. He opened negotiations with Prussia and secured important concessions in the shape of an amelioration of the original anti-Catholic policy of that nation; he maintained friendly relations with the French republic and both parties in England and his assistance to pacify Ireland. In short, the present pope is fairly described as a statesman who "has made his influence felt in all Christian countries." The dream of this exceedingly able and tactful pontiff has been the restoration of the territorial rights of the holy see. That [illegible] and justly proud of his [illegible] from Germany, he issued, May [illegible], an address in which he said [illegible] toward peace is to be sought [illegible] state of affairs in which the sovereign pontiff shall not be dependent on any power and shall enjoy liberty really worthy of the name, such as is his due. This situation, so far from being hurtful to the interests of Italy, would be of powerful assistance toward its safety and prosperity."

Crispi, the prime minister of Italy, in 1888, the year of the pope's jubilee, violently attacked through his official organ, the policy of the pope, characterizing the Vatican as a hot-bed of conspiracy against Italy, and [illegible] that the clerical party was seeking to reestablish the temporal power of the pope by means of a petition addressed to the legislature and to be signed by the entire population. Nobody signed the petition except the priests, the ignorant peasants and other folk of no political weight with the powers that be.

When Crispi got into power, after the death of De Pretis, he forced the passage of a new penal code, directed against the influence of the clerical party. The laws thus enacted are intolerably severe, and their severity illustrates the bitterness of the fight between the Vatican and the court party, represented by King Humbert and his ministry. It is pointed out that deep political feeling must be at the bottom of this anti-clerical law, for the new Italian code, otherwise, is exceedingly liberal to the point of looseness, since it does away with capital punishment, for homicide gets but twenty years' imprisonment, and theft but a year.

The present pope, with all his ability, is laboring to build up the "baseless fabric of a vision." His dream will never be realized. The temporal power of the pope can never be restored. The Franco-Prussian war "legislated" it out of existence, and in matters of serious consequence the "legislation" of great wars is seldom if ever reversed. The Stuarts were restored, but the house of commons continued to rule England; the first French revolution was drowned out in the sea of its own blood, but the land tenure it enacted remained unchanged; the first Napoleon fell with a crash that shook all Europe, like the fall of a great oak prostrated by the stress of all the winds of heaven; but the code Napoleon remains, and the basis of French civic institutions to-day is essentially as it was fashioned by Napoleon's mighty hand. That is why, although nominally a republic, there still clings to France the taint of the spirit of despotism that refuses to die, or dying hard, fills the air with its mephitic protest. The strange fact is that the intellectual and accomplished priesthood of Rome, both in Europe and America, are so blind to the fact that revolutions never march backwards, that they re-echo the pope's plea and hope for the restoration of temporal territorial power that is gone, never more to return. There can be no wheel within a wheel in united Italy for the future. The unity of Italy and the territorial sovereignty of the pope in Rome are absolutely incompatible. Since 1870, when the King of Italy supplanted the pope as civic sovereign of Rome, the city has doubled in population, and while the Crispi laws are an expression of views not worthy of a great statesman, since it never pays to persecute in this world, nevertheless Crispi is not more deaf to the teachings of history, or blind to the march of immutable and inevitable events than the aged and accomplished pope, who fondly hopes for the restoration of his local, temporal sovereignty in Rome. Pope Leo is an able and astute statesman, but he was born too late; the last decade of the Nineteenth century is no time to try and pump the breath of life with a clerical bellows into the drowned corpse of the temporal power of the pope. The Roman Catholic church is as full of life and strength as any of the great faiths of the world, but the resurrection of the temporal power of the pope is as impossible as it would be to make a mummy start to its feet by putting a mustard plaster on its chest.

THE RESURRECTION.

PORTLAND, OR., April 26.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your last Sunday's issue appeared the following:

> Easter services are announced in most of the churches this morning. Tender adoration of the "risen Lord" will be heard in church, chapel and cathedral, while the fragrance of the choicest flowers will "send back to the channel of nature responses to anthem and prayer." The world can afford to cherish even a superstition that leads to pleasing ceremonials, the essence of which is love and beauty and hope.

This certainly is most beautifully stated, but there is a strange incongruity mixed with the thought that challenges attention. "The world can afford to cherish even a superstition that leads to pleasing ceremonials the essence of which is love and beauty and hope."

Many millions have reposed the utmost faith in the resurrection of our Savior. The humblest of the race have bowed the knee before him believing that he has risen.

The most profound intellects and scholars, after the most searching investigation and [illegible] of all this, in the face of the unanimous testimony of the New Testament, on what authority does THE OREGONIAN pronounce the resurrection of Christ "a superstition?"

THE OREGONIAN is a great paper, and has a wide circulation, and certainly ought not to make such statements without being backed by the best authority. It is for the purpose of calling out this authority that I ask space for this item. Will you be kind enough to give the public your reasons for this remarkable statement? Have you scientific reasons? Is the testimony of the New Testament false? If so, how do you show it?

I am sincere in this matter and seek after light. The masses of the people want light. Give us facts, not speculation.

This question is being agitated in a manner never before known, and you could not confer a greater favor on your readers than to enlighten them in reference to it.

"If Christ be not risen, our faith is vain and we are of all men most miserable." Can it be that "love and beauty and hope" are the children of "superstition?"

W. HAMPTON SMITH.

It would be impossible for THE OREGONIAN, or for any newspaper to go into this subject at great length. To attempt it would require historical, literary and critical excursions too vast for a newspaper; it would be necessary to examine the whole literary basis of the legend of the resurrection, which would include an inquiry into the mood and feeling of the times out of which it grew. During the past fifty years the inquiry concerning the relation of Jesus of Nazareth and of the religion he founded to mankind and to the order of the world has been in progress, and the literature of it is vaster than that of any other subject of modern discussion. In the light of accumulating knowledge, of widening experience, of constantly enlarging correlation of the results of the study of mental, social, religious and historical phenomena, there is a growing tendency in the world of thought to eliminate from Christianity its exclusive and supernatural pretensions, and to put its claims on rational and natural grounds. This tendency is as manifest in the churches as elsewhere; the spirit of it pervades many of them through and through.

What is the idea of the resurrection? It is included in the belief that man is destined to immortality. The doctrine may well be preached that "Our Lord is Risen;" but Christianity has nothing further to gain by preaching that he rose from the dead in his natural body of flesh, and by insisting on this as proof or assurance of immortality to man. It is said, indeed, that he appeared in the flesh to many persons after he was risen from the dead, and that their testimony must decide it; but the world now has large acquaintance with the phenomena of apparitions and other manifestations, under religious excitement, and consequently finds no difficulty in accounting for the legend, while at the same time giving its authors full credit for entire sincerity.

Man will never give up his hope of immortality. The hope lies at the very bottom of his nature, and Christianity, by proclaiming it and by holding out promises to it, has done a mighty work for mankind and established itself as the mightiest of forces in the world. But Christianity must keep in harmony with the experience of mankind and adjust itself to the results. It cannot permanently maintain doctrines that are contrary to reason, to knowledge, to observation and to experience, and though it will not and cannot cease to proclaim immortality to man, it will be compelled to spiritualize the idea of the resurrection, and in other ways to admit that it is the truth of the doctrines that Jesus preached, not the supernatural legends concerning him, that bears so great a part in the redemption of our race.

A Neat Rejoinder.

A witty and attractive young lady asked, "What's the difference between myself and a clock?" "Mademoiselle, the clocks tell the hours, and you make us forget them," was the reply. The effects following the use of Tutt's Liver Pills is to make one forget the hours of suffering following dyspepsia, deranged liver, and biliousness. "Go on with your good work, and may God bless you," says J. W. Tibbatts, of Dakota, Minn., in a recent letter to Dr. Tutt.

AMUSEMENT WORLD.

The Scotch Entertainers at New Park—Unique Entertainment.

Love-Inman Company—McKanlass Musical Combination at Masonic Hall—Grismer-Davis Company—Theatrical Notes.

The character of public amusements during the past week has not been such as to draw very heavily upon amusement-going people. Indeed the average theater-goer has had a decided rest, since such attractions as the Bairnsfather Family, Love-Inman Comedy Company and McKanlass, would hardly lure him from his den.

BAIRNSFATHER FAMILY.

This talented family of Scotch entertainers gave two of their unique entertainments at the New Park on Monday and Tuesday evenings under the auspices of the St. Andrew's society and the Caledonian Club. While the entertainments were decidedly good in their way they did not seem to attract the audiences one would expect to see, considering the number of "Auld Scotia's" sons and their descendants who dwell in our midst. One mistake that was made, we think, was in giving the entertainment in so large a house as the New Park. It takes a large voice, at best, to fill this house even when it is full of people, and when it contains such small audiences as were present on these occasions, the task of making one's self heard must be extremely difficult.

This family is quite [illegible] in their [illegible] of the song and story of Scotland, Mr. Bairnsfather himself being the happy possessor of a rich Scottish brogue which he [illegible] with admirable effect in singing songs or telling a story.

Etta Bairnsfather has a voice [illegible] not very strong nor highly cultivated, yet she sings the tender, sentimental songs of her native country with [illegible].

The little ones, Miss Maggie and Master [illegible] Bairnsfather, show a decided amount of talent, especially the former, whose playing of the piano would do credit to a much older person. Their dancing of the Highland fling was a feature of the entertainment.

THE LOVE-INMAN COMPANY.

The boards of the New Park have been held since Wednesday evening by an aggregation of alleged dramatic talent styling itself as above, and their performances, which have been witnessed by the smallest audiences ever assembled in the house, were almost painful to behold.

The "star" of this histrionic galaxy, Miss Belle Inman, is underlined on their paper as "late leading lady with Modjeska," yet it is asking almost too much of an audience so easily gulled as is a Portland audience, to expect them to accept this statement without a grain of salt. Yet, if it be so, it is to be regretted that such close professional contact with the eminent Polish actress did not benefit her more than her crude acting would attest.

James A. Devlin, the comedian of the company, used to be rather clever in comedy roles, and we remember seeing him some years ago with Katie Putnam. He has not, however, made such strides in the profession as to merit especial commendation, yet he is about the only one of the company who seems to have the remotest idea of stage requirements, and he does his work fairly well. The rest act more like amateurs than professionals.

Their repertoire consisted of three plays, "Diamonds and Pearls," "Facing the Enemy," and another whose name we cannot recall, all weak, wishy-washy and motiveless things, with no literary and scarcely more dramatic merit.

It is about time that all such barn-storming, snap companies, destitute of talent, yet eager to fret their brief hour upon the stage by "going on the road," should give Portland a wide berth. Surely we have had our share of "fakes," and there is field enough for them in those rural communities where the people do not see a show once in six months, and where what would be damned by a city audience would, for its very novelty, if for no other reason, receive a fair degree of patronage. However, as it seems to be the fate of such companies to invite a Waterloo in Portland, THE OREGONIAN proposes to speak of them simply on their dramatic merits or not at all.

M'KANLASS COMPANY.

Professor McKanlass, the well-known colored banjoist, violinist, vocalist and all-around musician, with a small company of artists (?) gave two performances at Masonic hall on Wednesday and Thursday nights last to audiences chiefly remarkable for their numerical thinness. McKanlass himself is a clever musician and sings well, but his surroundings are rather weak and tame, and our concluding remarks anent the Love-Inman company will apply with equal force to this galaxy of talent, though of the two it was the better show.

STANDARD THEATER.

The programme presented at this house last week was one of the best specialty olios they have had for a long time. Leovo, the phenomenal juggler, the musical team Glenn and Weston and [illegible] been received nightly with great applause. Little Nellie McCoy, the petite song and dance artist, also came in for her share of applause. One of the best and most artistic features of the bill is the two "Irish Thrushes," Billy McCoy and Mamie McElroy, in their neat song and clog dance. Miss McElroy is one of the most finished dancers ever seen here.

THIS WEEK.

To-morrow evening at the New Park theater the Phoebe Davies company begin a week's engagement in a round of plays in which they have achieved a marked success. "Fairfax," one of the late Bartley Campbell's successful plays will be the opening piece.

An exchange says of this play:

The late Bartley Campbell wrote more successful plays than Fairfax, but hardly one with which less fault could be found. Fairfax is a true and pleasing picture of life in the South before the war. The characters are to an extent typical, but they are natural, and they have flavor of the soil. The play commences with a scene in "Gladys's" home on the Mississippi, with a drunken husband, a tramp, a faithful colored nurse and an infant. "Dr. Gaylord" is called in to see "Gladys's" child, and in a prescription he incloses a bank bill which he says would be needed in the purchase of the medicine. The drunken husband attempts to appropriate this money, and in a scuffle which follows a pistol is accidentally discharged and the husband [illegible] wounded to death. In the second act the stage represents an outdoor scene near "Fairfax" country residence. "Diana Dorsie" is swinging in a hammock talking in a [illegible] way with "Mrs. Dorsie," who [illegible] the fair "Diana's" displeasure. [illegible] is a charming one, [illegible] the piquant acting of Phoebe Davies in the role of "Diana." Miss Davies aspires to tragedy, but it is clear that she has comedy talent of a high order. Her "Diana" showed the impulses of the quick-tempered Southern girl whose heart is always in the right place as truthfully as a mirror would her physical features. Mr. Grismer met with a warm welcome and sustained the character of "Dr. Gaylord" with his usual [illegible].

The cast of the play will be as follows:

Dr. Guy Gaylord, an M. D.	Joseph R. Grismer
Diana Dorsie, one of the F. F. V's	Miss Phoebe Davies
Edwin Fairfax, a planter	Edgar Weir
James Marigold, a drunkard	George Irving
Webster Winne, a tramp	Ed. M. Page
Willie Wagstaff, a timid youth	Edwin Stoner
Ben } Slaves	Frank Hatch
Moses	C. A. Peterson
Elijah	James Nevins
Gladys, a noble woman	Miss Isabel Archer
Mrs. Dorsie, Diana's mother	Miss Sara Stevens
Virgie Fairfax, Edwin's child	Miss Mabel Bowman
Tobetts, a slave	Miss Fannie Bowman
Martha, a chambermaid	Miss Isabella Armour

Ladies, Gentlemen, Slaves, Roustabouts, Servants, etc.

On Wednesday and Thursday evenings another new play, "The Calthorpe Case," by Arthur Goodrich, will receive for the first time in Portland. It is of the style of "Jim the Penman," a society melodrama in four acts. The plot is intensely interesting, the comedy is of a most amusing order and humor and pathos are so blended as to make a piece of more than ordinary interest.

Miss Davies in the role of Florence Calthorpe is said to have an [illegible] opportunity for the display of those [illegible] abilities as an actress which have earned for her an enviable reputation as a leading lady.

Joseph R. Grismer also has a fine opportunity for some light comedy in a role which he improves most effectively. On Friday evening Clay M. Greene's successful play [illegible] will be rendered. This play is too familiar to Portland theater-goers to require further mention. "The World Against Her," [illegible] best [illegible] Mr. Grismer [illegible] Saturday matinee [illegible].

The advance sale for the Booth-Barrett engagement in Denver next week amounted to $[illegible] for the opening day, the largest in the history of the Tabor Grand Opera house.

One of the highest compliments Edwin Booth ever received, was paid him by an old negro woman, a family servant, who went to see the performance of "Richelieu," during Booth's visit to Savannah. Giving her impressions of the play to her mistress next day, she expressed the greatest [illegible] the [illegible] of the actor: "I [illegible] the storm."

[illegible] at the New [illegible] May 20.

T. Henry French owns all the plays in the country, and some out of it, and draws royalty from all the theaters. He is said to have collected a royalty from a [illegible] of Toledo.

The receipts during the four weeks' run of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," at the Boston [illegible] theater, reached the unprecedented sum of $40,000, the largest known in the history of the house for the same length of time.

Annie [illegible] played at the [illegible] St. Louis last week. For the first time in four years her audiences were [illegible], and "The Deacon's Daughter" did not seem to please as well as some of her other plays.

E. H. Sothern, son of the great "Dundreary," made his first appearance in San Francisco on last Monday night at the Baldwin after his New York success "Lord Chumley." He was warmly received and scored a decided triumph.

"A Midnight Bell" reached its [illegible] performance at the Bijou theater, New York, Tuesday night, and [illegible] in the form of a silver bell were distributed. Mr. Hoyt's amusing comedy continues to draw overflowing audiences.

The [illegible] Opera company [illegible] at the Avenue theater in New Orleans last week to good houses. The company is said to contain some good material, and [illegible] in their repertory are such operas as "Falka," "Mascot," "Musketeers," etc.

"What's the matter?" asked the manager of a burlesque show of the captain of a steamer. "One of the lady members of your company has just fallen overboard." "Great heavens! Then she's gone, she had her make-up on." "For sake, why?" "Yes, she had it on so heavy she has sunk to the bottom by this time."

"There is no voice on the stage to-day like Rose Coghlan's. It comes like the [illegible] sighing of some [illegible], like the last accents of [illegible], tremulous with good [illegible], deep [illegible] and desperate as a master violinist [illegible] the sorrowing sounds wail from vibrating fiddle-strings. It is a marvelous voice."

Miss Sadie Stringham, the talented California actress, late of the Grismer-Davies Company, who made such a hit in the character of Sally Millett, in "The World Against Her," was taken ill with the pleurisy while playing in Brooklyn. After successful operations performed upon her in which sixty ounces of water were taken from her left lung, she is rapidly recovering.

Those who contemplate visiting the city during the centennial should not fail to visit the great electric clock exhibition located at 130 First street. Take your family and let them see the largest and finest exhibition clock in the world. Yesterday afternoon many pupils of the schools were in attendance; they were highly pleased with the workings of this great masterpiece of mechanism. The spiritual part of the exhibition is given every evening at 8 o'clock.

Madame Albani the famous American prima donna, and probably next to Patti, the greatest of living artists, made her first appearance at the Grand Opera house in San Francisco on Monday night last and received a perfect ovation. The press is enthusiastic in praise of her singing, and says no such generous welcome was ever extended to an artist on her first night, not even to Patti. She was literally smothered in flowers. What a pity Manager Howe could not induce her to give a concert in Portland on her way East!—Dramatic Editor.

A good story is told of Mr. A. M. Palmer, the long-suffering manager who, by the way, is reported to have read 7000 plays during the past seventeen years—all bad but four. A well-known theatrical agent called upon him in regard to an aspiring young thespian who had been in one of the Madison square road companies.

"Does he know anything, Mr. Palmer?" asked the agent.

"Know anything!" repeated Mr. Palmer with tragic emphasis, and then, in a hoarse whisper, "My dear boy, he doesn't even suspect anything."

Joseph Jefferson intends to produce two plays only next season, but the casts will be so remarkable that everybody will want to see them. They could not be improved upon so far as the male characters go. Thus in "The Heir-at-Law" the cast will be: Dr. Pangloss, Joseph Jefferson; Zekiel Homespun, W. J. Florence; Lord Duberley, John Gilbert; Lady Duberley, Mrs. John Drew; Cicely Homespun, Miss Viola Allen. The cast of "The Rivals" will be: Sir Lucius O'Trigger, W. J. Florence; Bob Acres, Joseph Jefferson; Sir Anthony Absolute, John Gilbert; Mrs. Malaprop, Mrs. John Drew; Lydia Languish, Miss Viola Allen.

It is rumored that Maggie Mitchell and her former husband, Hank Paddock, are to join hands again. Doubtless the children [illegible] the idea of a reconciliation. They are fond of their father and none of them has been active in taking one side or the other in this controversy, but now that it has reached its present stage, and that all sorts of rumors are afloat, none of which [illegible] to bring about the [illegible] of a reconciliation, if not a real one. It is probable that a motion will shortly be made to vacate the decree of divorce recently granted in New Jersey, and that the motion will be unopposed.

Richard Mansfield has achieved an unusual success in his production of Richard III. in London. The [illegible], in the course of a very favorable notice, says of the last act: "Here the fights are really excellent in their semblance of actuality. Richard's repulse of a throng of the enemy, whom he beats back like a [illegible] bridge on which they attack him, confident in the strength of numbers, is a most exciting episode; and the final combat with Richmond was, in fact, much more severe than would be supposed by those who have read the very various criticisms of the crowning incident of the battle, or than the careless observer would imagine. With all its energy, dash, and apparent desperation, every movement of such a fight must be most carefully arranged, or is greatly to the credit of the players that this is so little, or at least not at all, obvious—for a blow that missed its mark, still more a parry that failed, would not only upset the whole business, and most likely render it ridiculous or even dangerous."

The following advertisement appeared in The Daily Herald of New Britain, Conn., April 4:

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

George Washington made a very good president, but he did not shake hands at his receptions. He merely greeted his visitors with a polite bow. Would it not be a sensible thing to re-establish this sensible custom, now that a hundred years have passed, and spare presidents the torture to which they are subjected by the absurd practice of hand shaking that has since come into vogue.

Our war ships assigned for the naval review at the New York centennial are the Chicago, carrying the flag of the secretary of the navy; the Boston carrying the admiral's flag; the Atlanta, Yorktown, Juniata and Yantic. Admiral Porter is grand marshal of the naval parade. Captain Woolsey, commander of the Merchant Steam Marine, reports that he will certainly have 400 vessels in line in his fleet. A number of ocean and coasting steamers belonging to both foreign and American steam ship lines have also expressed their determination to join in the parade.

General Sickles will soon have the sensation of being present at the unveiling of a monument in his honor, not as a disembodied spirit, but as far as circumstances allow in the flesh. It will stand at Gettysburg in the peach orchard on the Emmettsburg road, where he was wounded. A base of Concord granite eight feet thick is surmounted by a shaft of granite bearing a canopy supported by polished columns of green Tennessee marble. Here will stand a bust of the general. The canopy is surmounted by a bronze eagle standing twenty-three feet above the ground.

The Cincinnati society, of which General Washington was president, will hold a preliminary celebration in New York on Saturday evening, April 27. A commemorative banquet will be held at the rooms of the lawyers' club in the Equitable building, at which the venerable ex-secretary Hamilton Fish, the president general of the society, will preside. The next [illegible] Sunday [illegible] services will be held at St. Paul's chapel. The services will be conducted by two of the chaplains of the general society, Bishop William Stevens Perry, of Iowa, and the Rev. Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, of South Carolina, who are hereditary members. Bishop Perry will preach the sermon, which will also be [illegible] cathedral at Davenport, Iowa, at the same time.

TACOMA PAST AND PRES

A Dissertation Upon the "City of [illegible]" Out of the Usual Run.

Excursions [illegible] Taken by a Modern [illegible] In and Around the Great [illegible] Bay of Puget Sound.

About three years ago I was [illegible] the [illegible] Tacoma hotel. My only other duties were to [illegible] when [illegible] didn't go or come [illegible] and wonder what my [illegible] would be.

One day while sitting on the [illegible] watching those two silent [illegible] from the low [illegible] a quiet [illegible] on the left [illegible] in a voice that [illegible] central office drop its [illegible] at once.

He was a light, buoyant spirit that floats and swirls and eddies on the sea like a cork, never bobbing out of sight. [illegible] seriously, he gets a [illegible] there is some business to attend [illegible] though not hurried or [illegible] he had a joyful [illegible] in the future. The [illegible] had taken [illegible] being, and the thought [illegible] through my great [illegible] was built on a big [illegible].

What we talked about the first [illegible] but the [illegible] on and [illegible] out, was this remark:

"Tacoma's going to have a big boom." As he was the only [illegible] yet, and not a [illegible] I asked him [illegible] thought so. "It's coming up from [illegible] deflected from Los Angeles [illegible]. It will spread all over Washington and Oregon. There wasn't enough [illegible] down there. It can't subsist [illegible]. It doesn't like [illegible] land [illegible] irrigating ditches give it the chills, and [illegible] of its health it will come here [illegible] and it will stay with you a few [illegible] at least. Don't feed it too fat [illegible] to leave and [illegible] whole regions by the roots, [illegible]."

What a [illegible] dreams! I was awakened by the clatter of two lively [illegible]. One had discovered [illegible] in the clouds, [illegible] other was making frantic inquiries [illegible] of Mount Rainier. [illegible] it could only be seen from the [illegible] Seattle [illegible] that white [illegible] Rainier [illegible] to that effect.

At that time I didn't believe in [illegible]

[illegible]

The boom had arrived [illegible] last week I [illegible] acquainted with it. I have [illegible] descriptions of Tacoma, [illegible] been so many figures and [illegible] the foreground, that [illegible] obscured and rendered [illegible]. The pictures I have seen are [illegible] a point of view that carefully [illegible] Seattle, which as every Tacomaite [illegible] but a suburban retreat.

This fact inserts a modicum of [illegible] in the mind, everything [illegible] situation or contemplates Seattle [illegible] how it is, for I was in a retreat [illegible] North Carolina and the winter of [illegible] '62, I made it as suburban as possible. It was an orderly retreat. It was conducted in a masterly manner and according to [illegible] I lost everything, except honor, and I always sympathize with a man who [illegible] in a retreat such as mine [illegible] to know whether to say "good-bye" or "au revoir."

Tacoma has a fine position [illegible] under successive administrations [illegible] auspices. It is a commanding [illegible] overlooks the waters [illegible] Sound and several lakes. [illegible] known as the Terminus. It is a better position than that of [illegible] a little off [illegible] At first I thought [illegible] were a little off on real estate [illegible] found they were on [illegible]. TACOMA PAST AND PRESENT.

A Dissertation Upon the "City of Destiny" [illegible] Out of the Usual Run.

Reforms [illegible] Taken by a Modern Philosopher [illegible] and Around the [illegible] [illegible] Sound.

About three years ago I was [illegible] the west [illegible] hotel [illegible] a day. My [illegible] was to eat what I found [illegible] which [illegible] to [illegible] with [illegible] and wonder what my bill for extras would be.

One day [illegible] on the [illegible] which [illegible] two [illegible] from the [illegible] of the [illegible] about [illegible] the hotel [illegible] and [illegible] fire [illegible] the left short for Hyde and [illegible] that would make the [illegible] drop it [illegible] and [illegible].

He was [illegible] spirit one that floats and swirls and curls on the sea of life like a cork, ever bobbing out of sight unless [illegible] lady he get [illegible] there [illegible] some [illegible] to attend to. Although not [illegible] or experienced in religion he [illegible] and [illegible] tolerable confidence in the future. The moment he struck me [illegible] had taken possession of my being, and the thought had just carried through my great brain that Tacoma was [illegible].

What we talked about the first five minutes I know not, but the [illegible] sweeps the [illegible] his [illegible] was this remark:

"They're going to have a big boom here?" As he was the only [illegible] of a lawyer, and not a prophet, I asked him why he thought so. "It's coming up from California—deflected from Los Angeles and San Diego. It will spread all over Washington and Oregon. There wasn't [illegible] for it to live on down there. It can't [illegible] on climate at [illegible]. It don't [illegible] Mexican land grant [illegible] boundaries [illegible] the chills and for the benefit of its health it will come here. Treat it well and it will stay with you a few years at least. Don't feed it too [illegible] for it's the nature of the beast to [illegible] suddenly and [illegible] by the front and for [illegible] in your hands."

What [illegible] was I was [illegible] by the chatter of two [illegible] Boston females. One had [illegible] Mount [illegible] and the other was [illegible] the [illegible] of Mount [illegible]. I told her it could only be seen from the high point of Seattle [illegible] Tacoma [illegible] and let her [illegible] to the effect.

At that time I [illegible] beams I [illegible] hair [illegible] Jaundice but [illegible] more than I [illegible] long felt wants [illegible] I found a large [illegible] of [illegible] the safe. [illegible] an idea struck me [illegible] something in the [illegible] fortune [illegible] night. [illegible] Which was best? [illegible] only partially pay for [illegible] few [illegible] strict [illegible] Two months [illegible] high [illegible] the [illegible] to go in with.

The boom had arrived and was enjoying itself. Last week I went up to get acquainted with it. I have seen several descriptions of Tacoma, but [illegible] have been [illegible] in the foreground that they [illegible] obscured and rendered [illegible]. The pictures I have seen are all taken from a point of view that carefully excluded Seattle, which as every Tacomaite knows is but a suburban retreat.

This [illegible] a modicum of prejudice in the mind [illegible] tries to grasp the situation of [illegible] Seattle. I know how it is, for I was in a retreat myself in North Carolina [illegible] and the winter of [illegible] I made it as suburban as possible. Mine was a [illegible] retreat. It was conducted in a masterly manner and [illegible] direction. I lost everything except honor and time. I always sympathize with a man who loses [illegible] such as name. It bothers me to know whether to say "good bye" or "au revoir."

Tacoma has a fine position. She has held it under [illegible] administrations and favorable auspices. It is a commanding position and overlooks the [illegible] of Puget Sound [illegible] several [illegible]. It is known as the [illegible]. It is a much better position than that of collector of the port. The [illegible] of Commencement [illegible]. At first I [illegible] the people were a little [illegible] on real estate, but I found they were [illegible] bigger [illegible]. The [illegible] of Commencement Bay lies directly [illegible] and the [illegible] of Puyallup river keeps it cool and moist. [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] the lower extremity. [illegible] very seldom [illegible] above the surrounding country.

HOSPITABLE SPOKANITES.

The Royal Welcome Extended to Grand Army Veterans

How the City of Spokane Falls is Growing—[illegible] Davenport—Immigration to the Gray's Harbor Country—A New Town.

S[illegible], April 2[illegible].—[illegible] A [illegible] went [illegible] yesterday [illegible] as they passed along [illegible] avenue and looked at the beautiful decorations on all sides.

"Generally all Republicans, I suppose," was the witty reply.

The [illegible] of the enemy of Great Britain was [illegible] the truth [illegible] close to [illegible] going through [illegible].

There were nearly 1000 G. A. R. delegates and upwards of fifty members of the Woman's Relief Corps, some of whom were nurses in the Union Army, within the gates of this hospitable city for four days. They were from all parts of the territory and to say that they were well pleased with their reception and will take to their homes pleasant remembrance of its whole-souled people is putting it mildly. They were as full of enthusiasm as the Spokane Falls are full of water and they were bubbling over with good words for the place apparently with as much vigor and earnestness as the waves of pure water tumble over the rocks of the falls in the heart of the city. And what a place it is!

Why, it is as far above the two Sound cities in some respects as Mount Tacoma is above Steptoe butte, and it is going ahead with the strides of a giant to the manifest destiny of 100,000 people before the year 1900 dawns upon us—that is only a little over a decade hence. When the United States census takers were around here in 1880 it was a frontier settlement not worth mentioning in the report, but the magnificent water power was there, the tremendous fall of 157 feet of a great volume of water within the distance of half a mile was music to the keen-sighted pioneers, some of whom are now riding around the streets as millionaires. The water wound itself around little islands, rushed into rocky chasms, plunged over natural dams and in many channels came thundering along as if inviting the wheels of the mill men.

To-day this dashing river is running big flouring mills and sawmills and has power enough to furnish electric lights to a city of a million inhabitants. It could run a cable car line ten miles long. The great father of Waters at Minneapolis does not give as much motive power as this wonderful outlet to the Coeur d'Alene lake, a few miles off, and its banks will soon be dotted with as many manufacturing and milling establishments as the Mississippi at that point. It contains 90,000 horse power, and yet Spokane Falls, like Tacoma, is running both of its street cars with the festive mule.

I saw a ragged old Indian chief in bare feet with a dilapidated linen duster, a sorry-looking dirty felt hat, blue breeches and a red scarf as wide and as blazing as that of a militia colonel, looking at the Grand Army parade through the streets of this city. [illegible] order [illegible] at the pageant. What a change from a few years ago when his people were the owners of the land and about the only thing that disturbed the splendid water power was the fishing spear of the Indian at the base of the cataract. When the railroad reached these rapids five years ago a white man's city began to crystalize around them, the wealth of adjoining mines, the richest in the world, began to drop here, streets were cut through basaltic rock, houses were built, hotels, banks and business blocks, many of them as substantial and beautiful as any in Portland, arose five stories in the air, bridges spanned the river, newspapers, churches and schools appeared, and over 15,000 people are now here with a hundred new settlers a week augmenting the population.

Why, more than 700 public school children of all ages from the toddling boy of five up to the laughing maiden of fifteen passed through the [illegible] singing "The Union Forever," and they sang so lustily that it led a friend to remark that it must be a mighty healthy country for children, and so it is. It's healthy for grown people and it is healthy for bank accounts. The pay roll is what tells of a growing town and the men who are in the industrial establishments who seek the cashier every weekly pay day are increasing every day, as well as the size of the pay roll.

The streets and avenues of the city, broad and spacious, were splendidly decorated during the encampment week. They are solid road beds affording fine drives for vehicles and firm paths for the tramp, tramp, tramp of marching feet that kept step to the music of the Union a quarter of a century ago through the fertile fields of the South. All over the city the veterans marched and were cheered and at night a blaze of illuminating power from hundreds of Edison's incandescent lights arranged in clustering groups of words of welcome shone through the forest of American flags and made the scene a brilliant one. Next year when the territorial swaddling clothes have been packed away the veterans will assemble in the interior of the new state at Ellensburgh—another of the growing towns of Washington that will make a good showing in the census report of 1890.

Spokane Falls is a neat-looking city. The city ordinances are enforced here. I noticed one little thing illustrating that point. Every telegraph pole in the entire corporation is painted a dark red and kept free from the numberless signs of the cheap advertising fiend who disfigures the poles and fences of Seattle and Tacoma notwithstanding the law against it. Looking up and down the broad thoroughfares lined with tall fine buildings these poles stretch far off in the distance like a perfect alignment of a red-coated regiment of men. The streets are kept clean, there are no steep grades in the business section. In fact, the [illegible] business quarter—all the avenues between the railway and the river are [illegible] thoroughfares. It is not a [illegible] lengthy street where all the [illegible]. It is extending everywhere. Away [illegible] the distance [illegible] the [illegible] mountains. Winding around [illegible] unsurpassed for [illegible] scenery. At the [illegible] fail to [illegible] that Spokane Falls be [illegible] as the [illegible] the lawyers in the territory [illegible] to the coming state constitutional convention.

Monopoly has no grip here. [illegible] of the city have [illegible] for fifty years to a syndicate, [illegible] city council were to do [illegible] thing there is a mayor here who would have [illegible] enough to veto [illegible] population that would [illegible] electric lights, the gas light [illegible] of the river down below, to practically the same corporation that runs the street [illegible] way. Wealth is [illegible] here, enterprise is not throttled until [illegible] allowed [illegible] to [illegible] the railroad corporation. I know [illegible] miles from here [illegible] of the corporation [illegible] corporation [illegible] getting [illegible] city [illegible] on the [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] down there [illegible] the private [illegible] articles for the [illegible] of the battle [illegible] G. A. R. [illegible] the city of organization where the private can get even with the [illegible] All [illegible] on an equal footing. One of the features of the Grand Army gathering in the territory is the [illegible] Olympia delegation. It is always out in force with good speakers, good singers, and [illegible] men who are the life of the encampment. The Tacoma delegation at the meeting [illegible] was the strongest, having twelve members present.

On the return trip westward from Spokane Falls I met David Wilson, the wealthy capitalist, and some friends at Cheney who were bound to Davenport. Both Cheney and Davenport are more [illegible] and commerce [illegible]. Mr. Wilson said: "There is more freight [illegible] at Davenport [illegible] than any other point in the territory. Scores of outfits [illegible] Davenport [illegible] forty miles [illegible] The new hotel there will [illegible] be completed in [illegible] run every day with [illegible] passengers and freight from Spokane [illegible] Cheney and Davenport. There [illegible] $[illegible] worth of farming [illegible] Davenport this [illegible] to Spokane Falls."

I saw a large number of immigrants on the west-bound train who were going to the Gray's Harbor country where there is at present a wonderful amount of activity. A number of capitalists who were on the Sound last week spoke of the very early development of that fertile region. At present it [illegible] for some time to come must continue to be tributary to Portland, and its only outlet now is by steamer to that city. Some statements were made in THE OREGONIAN'S correspondence some weeks ago of the purchase of some 2180 acres of land below the Hoquiam for a new townsite at the terminus of the Tacoma, Olympia & Gray's Harbor railroad. Since then I am informed that over $150,000 worth of property has changed hands there. The new town is said to be eligibly situated. It is about two miles from its center to the Gray's Harbor bar and with the exception of the outer bar there is no obstruction to navigation along the whole route to the sea.

The tide flats extend out from the shore line for a distance of from a quarter to half a mile, but the land rises from this shore line on a gentle slope for a considerable distance back to the little [illegible] river, which has a supply of pure water sufficient for a population of half a million people. There is no swampy or tide marsh land in the townsite. Through its center flows a creek which cuts the tide flats in two, and the proprietors of the townsite are about to dredge a channel 600 feet wide and thirty feet deep [illegible] bed of the creek, one side to be used by the railway company for terminal facilities and the other side for manufactories and wholesale houses.

There are now I understand about seventy-five men at work grading the place and getting ready for business. This number will be increased to 200 in a few days. The survey of the road from Centralia has been completed and the final location made and very shortly the car will be running through [illegible] Montesano and Aberdeen to the new city which will [illegible] in June. The [illegible] road from Centralia is at present [illegible] for a coal road from the company's mines [illegible] a few miles east of Centralia, where they own [illegible] two townships of which they [illegible] coal lands on the [illegible] slope. I [illegible] that the road is to be extended through the [illegible] pass to a connection with the [illegible] road which is now being [illegible] on the coast. [illegible] that all arrangements have been made by [illegible] Lowe of [illegible] ex-Governor Marshall of Minnesota and [illegible] of Portland [illegible] though they decline to [illegible] the opening of the mine [illegible] the few miles between them at Centralia will give Portland an opportunity of getting coal nearer at hand than at present.

The building of this road will [illegible] take a large population to Gray's Harbor and a great development will [illegible] take place in the [illegible] of the next twelve months. [illegible] the Chehalis [illegible] other valley [illegible] to Gray's Harbor [illegible] navigable streams emptying into Gray's Harbor, each of [illegible] large stretches of bottom lands which rank among the most fertile in the world, with a soil composed of alluvial deposit whose depth has never been ascertained. In addition to the [illegible] lands with their wonderful capabilities, there are on the harbor proper, according to the government surveys, about eighty thousand acres of tide land, the richest in the world. All kinds of produce are raised on these lands, and last year one farmer living up the Wishkah raised on a little patch of land which had not been stumped a crop of hops which was enough to make the Puyallup valley men green with envy. The climate is equable and moist, and there can be no failure of crops if any sort of care is taken of them.

The timber on this land is the best in the territory and although the saw mills are cutting at the rate of half a million feet a day, it is estimated that there is sufficient timber easily accessible to last at this rate of cutting for 200 years. The mills will soon be largely increased in number as the firm of A. M. Simpson & Bro., who own the large mill at the Hoquiam, have decided to build another mill with a capacity of [illegible] feet a day on the new townsite.

Much has been written lately about the difficulties of crossing the bar at the mouth of the river, but I am reliably informed that recent soundings [illegible] have stated that [illegible] twenty-six feet of water on the bar at low tide and thirty feet at high tide. An old sea captain who [illegible] the harbor recently has stated that he sounded the bar all the way in and nowhere found less than thirty feet at half tide. Like all portions of the [illegible] this region will grow [illegible] enormous [illegible] Gray's Harbor [illegible] Portland [illegible] C. M. B.

Review of the Work of April—Observations Taken by Mr Noel H. Jacks the Traveling Secretary

The work of the associations in the Northwest is very encouraging. [illegible] there cause for thanksgiving in the interest that is manifested in the spiritual part of our work, and the number of young men who are constantly being led to Christ. The young men of our association are becoming [illegible] in the matter of personal work for the unsaved, and much more individual presentation of the gospel is being done. A good interest is seen in Bible study, for this we are thankful, for an important part of our work is training young men to study and use the scriptures intelligently. The secular part of our work is being well looked after, and much is being done to draw young men to us in this way.

The traveling secretary held a few special meetings with the Victoria association, March 4 and 7, which was a season of refreshing to the young men, and several found the Savior.

A movement is on foot in Victoria to secure a lot, and on Monday, March 24, a meeting was held in the theater, addressed by Hon. John Robson, president of the association, Rev. Mr. Rugg, Rev. Mr. McLeod and Noel H. Jacks. Seven hundred and twenty-five dollars was pledged in small amounts. Hon. John Robson offered to be one of ten to give $500 each. Only three were secured and $350 was pledged the next day. They hope to accomplish their object this year.

Mr. Teague, the general secretary, has a fine class in gymnastics, being himself their instructor.

The general secretaries' conference will meet at Victoria in September, and already arrangements are being made to use the power that will then be there, in the persons of our secretaries, to the advantage of our association.

The Vancouver boys are happy over the success of a meeting held there on Friday evening, March 5, when $[illegible] was raised, which paid off a mortgage on their present property and secured the new lot, making them to-day worth $13,000. They hope to lay the corner stone of a $[illegible] building September next, when the convention meets there.

Mr. Charles A. Davie, the general secretary elect of the New Westminster association, is on his field and hard at work. He was fortunate in beginning his work to have Mr. Teague of Victoria, Mr. Charnock of Vancouver and Traveling Secretary Jacks with [illegible]. Money was raised for the year [illegible] committee and a new [illegible] were [illegible] and the ladies have agreed to furnish [illegible] for them.

The Port Townsend association will move into their new building some time in April [illegible] story frame, costing $1700. The [illegible] will be used as a gymnasium, [illegible] will be devoted to reading, [illegible] the third is sleeping rooms [illegible] which will bring them an income of $[illegible] per month. They hope soon to [illegible] general secretary.

Mr. S. M. [illegible], general secretary of the [illegible] association, is home in Seattle on the [illegible]. He is just recovering from an attack of [illegible] fever.

The Tacoma association is in a peculiar [illegible] with its general secretary and rooms in which to work. Nothing can be [illegible] and their only hope is to build, but every [illegible] the direction because no one will sell them a lot. Property is held at an extremely high price, and if anyone talks of buying, the price is almost sure to advance. The only work that [illegible] at present is the keeping up of the [illegible] meeting, which is always largely [illegible]. The city is constantly thronged with [illegible] men, and the needs of an [illegible] very great. Just as soon as a lot can be secured a building will be commenced.

INAUGURATION DAY SERVICES.

A Form Prepared by Bishop Morris To Be Used in Episcopal Churches on April 30

Bishop Morris has set forth a form of prayer and thanksgiving to Almighty God for the [illegible] to be used in the Episcopal churches on Tuesday, April 30, 1889, the one hundredth anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as first president of the United States of America.

This service consists of [illegible] Holy Scripture, the creed, the Te Deum, part of the Benedicite, the [illegible] and other familiar portions of the order for morning prayer. Among the collects are the following:

A PRAYER OF THANKSGIVING.

O [illegible] whose [illegible] is excellent in all the earth [illegible] whose glory is above the heavens. We bless thee for the [illegible] didst bring forth the [illegible]. We consider the days of old and the years of ancient time [illegible] unto thee [illegible] thanks. Moreover we [illegible] thee [illegible] praise for the wonderful grace [illegible] declared to all these thy children who have been [illegible] light of the world in their several generations [illegible] thy servant George Washington [illegible] him to be a leader and a commander to the people, for vouchsafing to him victory over kings and for bestowing upon him and [illegible] counsels, for [illegible] the hearts of men in congress assembled [illegible] and for granting them [illegible], for a settled constitution [illegible] laws, for freedom to do the thing that is right and liberty to say the truth, for the spread of knowledge everywhere among us, and for the preservation of the faith, we bless and magnify thy holy Name [illegible] beseeching thee to accept this our sacrifice of thanks and praise, through Jesus Christ our only Savior and redeemer. Amen.

For the President of the United States and all in Civil Authority. Almighty God, the fountain of all goodness, we humbly beseech thee to bless thy servant Benjamin Harrison, president of the United States, his counselors and all others in authority. Endue them with thy Holy Spirit, enrich them with thy heavenly grace, prosper them with all happiness, and bring them to thine everlasting kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

A BIG BOOST FOR PORTLAND.

Mr. Frank Wenderoth, of Chicago, Pays the City a High Compliment.

He Tells Why He Has Confidence in Her Future—Her Commercial Supremacy and Resources—More Houses Needed.

Frank Wenderoth, of the large furniture firm of Wenderoth Bros., Chicago, having traveled extensively over this entire Western country, has at last come to the conclusion that there is no place like Portland for the safe investment of capital. Mr. Wenderoth left Chicago about two weeks ago, and, in company with a capitalist from Syracuse, N. Y., and another from Cincinnati, O., he made a careful examination of the Sound cities and Spokane Falls, with the view of investing some money.

While these cities, as far as thrift, enterprise and prosperity is concerned, suited them well enough, they lacked the one essential of stability and permanency, and for this reason alone Mr. Wenderoth continued his journey to Portland. Since his arrival in this city he has purchased 20 acres in the suburbs back of Portland Heights. The land is a portion of Judge Shattuck's tract, about two miles from the city limits, and was bought for a consideration of $15,000.

"Does this look as though I had any confidence in the future of Portland?" asked Mr. Wenderoth of the reporter.

"I will tell you why I bought here," he continued. "It is because the property in Portland to-day is cheaper than any other city in the country. There is not another city of this size where property, so near the business center, can be bought at such a reasonable figure.

"Portland offers every inducement. In the first place the city has no boom, and this fact alone inspires confidence in capitalists who have money to invest. It has a commercial supremacy already established, and firmly established, so that there can never be any retrogression. It has every advantage of location and tributary territory. The state has the best kind of agricultural land, unlimited lumber supply, untold mineral wealth, and other resources that combine to insure for it a great future and for its metropolis and distributing center, Portland, a steady growth and prosperity.

"No, I am not an Eutopian dreamer," said Mr. Wenderoth, "but I look upon Portland as the pulse of this western country. While many of the other cities, no doubt, will make a spurge and enjoy the excitement of a boom, Portland will move steadily forward like Chicago and Minneapolis have done.

"It is true that one of the great drawbacks of Portland has been the lack of push and enterprise among the native webfeet. There is sufficient wealth here, but evidently a little too much mossbackism. I believe in evolution and as the Eastern people begin to find out for themselves the field for capital in this country, they will come and give this territory a new impetus. The mossbacks will be crowded to the wall and must take back seats."

"What do you expect to do with your land?" was asked him.

"Do with it?" replied he. "Why, I will improve it. That is the only thing that can be done with it. I see that your city is in great need of dwelling houses. People are looking about for houses to rent, but are unable to find them. Rent, too, is rather high. I intend to build about fifteen houses at once, at a cost of from $1200 to $1500 each, and then rent them out. The city needs more houses for all classes of people, and I don't see why there are not suburbs in every direction, where people can make for themselves pleasant homes. In a city the size of Portland, there should be more houses to rent."

Mr. Wenderoth is delegated by a Chicago business man, and another one from St. Paul, as they themselves intend to visit the coast in the fall. Besides this he has about $100,000 for investment at the present time. He said that he had no intention of starting a furniture factory here at present, but he left the inference to be drawn that he, sooner or later, would engage in such an enterprise. [illegible] and expects to return with his brother and several other gentlemen, early in the fall.

DOWN GO THE TOLLS.

The Fares on the Bridge and Ferry Come Down a Peg Yesterday.

County Judge Catlin and County Commissioners Dunne and Smith, after several weeks' consideration of the request of the citizens of East Portland for a reduction of the maximum rates on the Stark-street ferry and Morrison-street bridge, agreed yesterday afternoon to make a cut in the tolls. A few reductions were made, but the old commutation tickets were not restored. The new rates, which will go into effect May 10, are as follows:

For each vehicle with one span of horses and driver, with load of freight not exceeding 2000 pounds, 20 cents.

For each additional ton or part thereof, 10 cents, a reduction of 10 cents.

For each additional animal attached to vehicle, 5 cents.

For eight tickets for above, 20 cent crossings, $1.

For each one horse vehicle with load and driver, 10 cents, a reduction of [illegible] cents.

For seven tickets for same, 50 cents. The bridge and ferry companies allowed only five tickets for 50 cents.

For each horseman, 10 cents.

For each footman, [illegible] cents.

Ten tickets for footmen, 25 cents. The company allowed only eight tickets.

For each [illegible] cattle, [illegible] each 2 cents, a reduction of [illegible] cents.

Sheep and hogs, [illegible] cents each, a reduction of 2½ cents.

Any vehicle [illegible] passengers for hire [illegible] family as a [illegible] being carried [illegible] member of such family [illegible] or 5 cents.

Children under [illegible] years, free; children [illegible] and 14 years, a ticket of [illegible] cents.

One horse car, 10 cents.

For each addition of horse, [illegible].

New Regulations Regarding the Testing of Marine Boilers—Other Shipping Notes.

The Steamer Oregon, which arrived at her dock from San Francisco shortly before 12 o'clock Friday night brought up two large stage coaches of the early California pattern, which are to be sent into Idaho and Eastern Washington. They bear the brand of the Mount Hamilton Stage Company, and used to be run out to the Lick observatory.

The O. R. & N. Co. will most likely bring their elegant steamer [illegible] Potter around from Puget Sound, remodeling it and place her on the route between this city and the seaside. In that event the Alaskan which has been lying at [illegible] will be taken around to the Sound to be run between Seattle, Tacoma and Victoria.

The steamer [illegible] completed discharging her cargo at the dock, between A and B streets, yesterday morning. She has 5000 mats of rice, mostly consigned to [illegible] Back, and the [illegible] amounts to over [illegible].

The British bark [illegible] 122 days from Astoria and the British ship Maxwell 127 out arrived at Queenstown on the 21st. The British bark Ancolyn [illegible] at the same port on the following day making the passage in [illegible] days.

The British ship Nebo, which sailed from Astoria November 29, arrived at Queenstown April 25th, making the passage in 142 days.

The British bark Ariadne, en route from Astoria to Queenstown, was spoken March 12th in latitude [illegible] south, longitude [illegible].

"BRING OUT YOUR HORSES."

There Will Be a Meeting at the Park Early in June.

President Rothchild of the Portland Speed Association Talks About the Prospects for the Races on Hand.

The Portland Speed Association held a meeting last night and decided to hold a spring meeting at City View park, beginning Wednesday, June 5, and continuing four days. The purse to be offered will not be quite so large as at the meeting last fall, when $600 was put up but it will be large enough to make things interesting.

The meeting promises to be a great success. It is expected that the best runners and trotters in Oregon will be entered and beside some good California horses will stop over on their way to Montana.

Among the horses in training on the track now are Little Joe, who has a record of 2:21½, Pattern, who has made the record in 2:2[illegible], Susie S., Maud Knox, Lady Maud and any number of horses of the 2:30 and 2:40 classes. The following stables of runners and trotters are expected to be on hand: Byrce, Donaca, Johnson, Whitmore, Mattern, Pumpkins, Hayes, Ross, Wells, Jones, Forbes, Sawyer and others.

"Do you think the meeting will be successful?" said a reporter to E. S. Rothchild, president of the association, after the meeting last night.

"Yes. We have received a great many communications from horse owners, and the universal opinion is that the meeting should be held early in June so as not to interfere with their attendance at the races to be held in Montana in the latter part of the month and early in July. There are now forty-seven horses in training at City View Park, and equally as many at Walla Walla, and from the number of horse owners who have expressed their desire to enter in the spring races, the meeting bids fair to be fully as successful as the one held last fall under the auspices of the association. There will probably be four races a day, in each of which an average of four horses will enter."

"How about the purse?"

"We propose to make it as large as we can and to that end we will put in every dollar we can get hold of. Last fall the public subscribed generously to aid the meeting. This year no subscriptions will be asked to either the spring or fall meetings, but the city will be thoroughly canvassed for the purpose of selling as many tickets as possible for each day of the races. In this way, and by selling the pool and other privileges, we expect to raise a great deal of money. We consider this method the best one, and hope the people will encourage it by their presence at the races and by purchasing tickets freely. This is entirely a matter of public spirit, the object being simply to create an interest in the turf by holding legitimate races."

The track at City View park is being put in condition for the meeting. Horsemen who purpose entering are requested to correspond immediately with M. A. Gunst, the secretary of the association, as it is intended to issue the programme at an early date, and this cannot be done unless the association has the names of all the horses.

THE COMING CELEBRATION.

The Centennial of Washington's Inauguration Will be Commemorated in a Fitting Manner.

The committee on arrangements for the celebration of April 30, are confident of making the day one of the most memorable [illegible] with the largest and most imposing that has ever marched over the streets of the city since 1876. The military organizations, composed of United States infantry troops, cavalry, and state militia, alone, will make a fair-sized army, while the different civic societies and citizens in carriages will augment the procession to such an extent that it will take some time for the moving column to pass a given point. There will be at least eight or ten bands, appropriate emblems and banners, and national flags in large number to give diversity to the parade. Martial airs from the throats of hundreds of brass instruments will enliven the march of the patriotic participants, and red, white and blue streamers and flags will give brilliancy and animation to the moving column.

Arrangements for transportation of members of the state militia have been made to the satisfaction of all.

To accommodate those wishing to visit Portland to attend the centennial celebration on April 30, the Southern Pacific Company lines in Oregon will run a special train on April 30, leaving Eugene at 4 A. M., and keeping fifteen minutes ahead of schedule time of the overland train.

Excursion tickets will be on sale from April 29 to 30, and will be good to return until May 2, 1889.

These tickets will not be good on the north-bound California express train.

Through the courtesy of Manager Koehler, of the Southern Pacific Company, the military companies at Eugene, Albany and Salem will be brought to Portland on the above special train.

The tickets for the military companies will not be honored on the northbound California express train.

Special rates on the other roads have already been published several times, and as no further changes have been made it is not necessary to repeat them.

RUINED BY A FORTUNE.

Alfred S. Kidder, Formerly of Portland, Commits Suicide in Richmond, Va.—His Money Squandered.

The following, taken from the Evening Telegram, chronicles the fate of a young man well known in this city, who formed too great an attachment for the frivolities and intoxicating pleasures of a dissipated life:

About four years ago Alfred S. Kidder, then 20 years of age, was well known in this city. He was a law student during the eighteen months he resided here and gained many friends. One day in the summer of '85 he received a telegram from Baltimore, Md., advising him that he had fallen heir to a considerable estate in that city, and a few days later he left Portland.

From that time on nothing was heard here of Kidder, beyond an occasional letter he wrote to a friend. This same friend received a letter from Kidder's sister this morning announcing the fact that her brother committed suicide in Richmond, Virginia, April 10. She also inclosed a newspaper clipping, detailing Kidder's tragic end. The means he employed was an old fashioned derringer pistol with which he sent a ball crashing through his brain.

The fortune Kidder fell heir to amounted to no less than $50,000. No sooner had he come into possession of the money than he began to lead a life of dissipated pleasure, indulging in wine, women and cards to excess. The day of his death he was in possession of but $500 of his former neat fortune, and that amount he recklessly lost at a game of poker. An hour later the report of a pistol was heard in his room, and ten minutes thereafter he was found a corpse lying on the floor.

VARIOUS JUDICIAL ITEMS.

Those Who Found the Yoke of Wedlock Very Heavy to Bear.

Has Sued for His Fees—Hymen's Twine—Moran Discharged Under the "Poor Act"—Court Notes.

Judge Stearns yesterday granted Effie W. White a divorce from Frank E. White and Julia Tyler one from A. R. Tyler. Cruelty and failure to support were the causes set forth in both cases. In the case of Dr. C. H. Wheeler vs. Ella A. Wheeler the hearing of evidence was resumed and the case was argued and submitted.

HE WAS GIVEN HIS LIBERTY.

Timothy Moran, a prisoner sentenced in the United States district court on the 9th inst. for dispensing the exhilarating firewater to the lone Indian, was yesterday discharged by Judge Deady. Moran was sent to the county jail in default of a $10 fine, but as he was anxious to regain his liberty, he wrote a very pathetic letter to the court referring to his past record as a soldier in the late civil war, and asking to be released so that he would not lose his position as a fisherman on the Columbia river. If he could not get back to his boat by the 1st of May he said he would lose his place. The court granted the petitioner's request, especially as the case was not a very aggravated one, and Moran went forth a free man.

THE GROCER'S [illegible]

The case A. de Grasse, charged with defacing a building belonging to Ignatz Grueninger, situated on South Sixth street near the rock crusher, came to trial in Justice Phelan's court yesterday afternoon. A great deal of time was occupied in hearing the great mass of testimony introduced. De Grasse was fined $25 and costs which he paid. It comes rather high to break a neighbor's windows.

In the same court the case of A. Thompson against Mollie Gunderson was partially heard. The suit is for $21, the balance owed the plaintiff for a passage from Norway to this country.

BOYCOTTERS VS. BOYCOTTED.

In Justice Phelan's court yesterday, Fred Helmes, charged by Henry Schrol with defacing a building and assault and battery, demanded a jury trial and his case was continued until next Wednesday.

As has already been stated, Helmes was in the employ of the Brewers' Protective Union engaged in posting bills declaring Henry Weinhard's beer to be "under the ban," which is a mild way of saying that the firm was boycotted by the union.

It is said that this case will be utterly contested the Federated Trades defending the prisoner and the Weinhard forces prosecuting.

JUDGE TANNER'S LEVEE.

The following cases were disposed of in the city police court yesterday: Hugh Kenmon, fighting, fined $10; Charles Clarke, drunk, $5; S. Madison, Charles [illegible] Rowe, drunk, fined $10 each; Harry Morse, charged with fast driving, changed his plea of not guilty to guilty and was fined $5; May Woods, violating section 4710 of the city ordinance, fined $20; China Sue, soliciting, fined $25.

MORIN WANTS HIS FEES.

Joseph Morin, the young man who was the complaining witness against Albert J. Cody, convicted of mayhem recently, yesterday sued the county in the state circuit court to recover $80 witness fees. He claims that he was detained in the county jail twenty-eight days.

Heid Bros. & Co. have sued Simon, Fog & Co. to recover $347 for goods sold.

HIS POVERTY RELEASED HIM.

James Purdell, a United States prisoner under confinement in the county jail, where he has been sent in default of a fine for selling liquor to Indians, was yesterday released by Commissioner Woodward under the poor act, the prisoner having taken oath that he does not possess the amount of his fine either in personal property or real estate.

CHARGED WITH CROOKEDNESS.

Wm. Myle, clerk of the Umatilla reservation, was yesterday brought before United States Commissioner Deady and placed under bonds awaiting an examination on a charge of certain crookedness or discrepancy in his accounts.

LICENSED TO WED.

Marriage licenses were granted yesterday for Martin Clancy and Margaret Flanagan, Lewis L. May and Mary L. Reynolds, Wm. Winningham and Nannie Wann.

COPIED FROM THE BLOTTER.

STATE CIRCUIT COURT NO. 1.

William Mockler vs. Portland & Willamette Valley Railway Company; demurrer to complaint argued and submitted.

W. W. Spaulding vs. Portland & Willamette Valley Railway Company; demurrer to complaint overruled; defendant allowed until next Saturday to plead.

U. S. G. Marquam vs. N. C. Strong; demurrer to complaint argued and submitted.

W. S. Buchanan vs. Portland & Willamette Valley Railway Company; motion to strike out parts of complaint submitted without argument.

WHO WILL TAKE A CHEAP HOME?

To persons seeking homes in one of the most healthy and desirable locations in Multnomah county, we would call their attention to the Dunn addition to East Portland, situated in one of the most picturesque spots on the East side. It is on beautiful high ground lying on Twenty-first street, and C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J and K streets running east and west through it. The motor line passes it on the south and the Holladay avenue line on the north, and a franchise is now granted for a street car line on G street, to run through it this summer, making it the finest and best location in the two cities for homes for the wealthy and the middle classes. This is no backwoods property, but right on the inside. It contains 121 building lots, and will be closed out inside of thirty days, none higher than $1000, and some as low as $400, according to location and corners, making it the cheapest property ever placed on the market in Multnomah county.

The present owners having purchased it of the heirs of the late John L. Dunn deceased, for cash, at bedrock price, can afford to give the workingman and the mechanic a home in a location where he will never again have the same chance, and the stockholders in this tract being men of means will let this property go for 20 per cent. down and the balance in four semi-annual payments at 8 per cent, in trust.

This desirable property will only be on the market for thirty days, as at the end of that time the parties owning it, if any remains unsold, will divide it up and build homes on it for themselves and their children. Any information in regard to it will be kindly tendered to inquirers by Mr. V. Kratz, No. 213 Front street, West Portland, where maps and a general outline and survey of the plat can be seen and examined by parties desiring to purchase, or John Angel, real estate broker, Esmond block, Front street. Also Silas Jones and R. M. Dunne, 125 First street, who will take intending purchasers to the tract.

EAST SIDE NEWS ITEMS.

The Trouble Between W. H. H. Grant and W. D. Pape Not Yet Ended.

Special Services To Be Held—Various Railway Notes—Sumner Post, G. A. R., Will Take Part—Personal.

Yesterday one of the principal topics of conversation on the streets was the difficulty between W. H. H. Grant and W. D. Pape. In the forenoon Grant was arraigned before Justice Mayo, on the charge of assaulting Pape. He was found guilty and fined $12 and costs, amounting in all to about $20. After assaulting Pape, Grant, it is averred, used very abusive language, so after the conclusion of the case in Mayo's court, another complaint was filed before the recorder covering this offense. The trial was set for Monday at 11 A. M. It will probably be a jury trial and will be hotly contested.

MR. GRANT'S STATEMENT.

Concerning the difficulty with Mr. Pape, and the arrest of Mr. W. H. H. Grant the latter gentleman called at THE OREGONIAN office yesterday, and made the following statement: "The statement that I struck Mr. Pape without speaking to him is incorrect. As he passed me I said to him, 'Why did you have me arrested?' I then struck him, knocking him down. When he got up I said: 'You can have me arrested now if you wish, and we can settle it some other time.' I then walked away from him. To-day," continued Mr. Grant, "Pape said to me that I ought to take down my sign and leave the entire business to him. He said he had corralled the whole business himself. He said I had better leave the insurance business to him and attend to the real estate business. Pape followed me and my partner around the streets to-day, annoying us, and endeavoring to provoke me."

Mr. Grant said he had entered a plea of guilty to assault and battery on Pape and had paid his fine. Later in the day, he said that Pape had had him arrested on a charge of using abusive language, and the case will come up Monday. He said he considered that Pape's actions had been prompted by malice in making the last complaint.

"I met him to-day," said Grant, "and remarked: 'Well, you have had me arrested for the third time. Now I propose to stay with you and see this matter through.'"

The difficulty between the two men originally arose over some difference in regard to insurance matters.

RAILWAY NEWS.

It has taken much longer to get the new motor of the Willamette Bridge Railway Company in running condition than was anticipated. The motor has made several runs up the hill, and will be in condition to go into regular service in a few days. It takes some time to get every part "limbered" and in working order.

The Portland & Vancouver railroad yesterday received two fine passenger coaches and one was unloaded at J and First streets. The other car was not unloaded, as it would have blocked up the O. & C. track too long. The exterior and interior finish of the cars is very fine. Seats are arranged the same as those on a regular wide gauge road.

The box car for the Star brewery of Vancouver, being built at the shops on Water and K streets, is nearly finished. It will be used for transporting beer from Vancouver.

WEATHER BULLETIN NO. 8.

All Crops Greatly Benefited by the Showers of the Week.

Reports From All Parts of Oregon Show that the General Condition of Agriculture is Excellent—Large Yields Assured.

The following crop-weather bulletin is compiled from reports received from the different counties named, by B. S. Pague, who is in charge of the central office of the Oregon state weather bureau at Portland, for the week ending April 27:

The past week has given to Oregon her usual weather. Rains have been copious along the coast, the Columbia river basin, in the northern part of Eastern Oregon and in the Willamette valley, while showers have occurred in the Umpqua and Rogue river valleys and in Southeastern Oregon. The rains have been of great benefit to crops generally speaking, some sections in the low lands of the Willamette valley being slightly injured by the water remaining on the surface.

All parts of the state are yet deficient in the average amount of precipitation, yet the rains of the past two weeks have been so well distributed that they have benefited the crops the same as though the average amount had fallen, except in some sections of the Rogue river valley and through Lake, Klamath, Grant, Harney and Malheur counties where considerable rain has yet to fall to insure the hay crop and wild grasses. In the more settled and truly agricultural sections the want of rain is scarcely at all felt any more.

The temperature has been generally above the normal, the 26th being pretty warm. On the other days of the week it has been of such a degree of heat as to prove of great benefit to the crops.

The sunshine has been about the average. The success of all crops depend upon the rainfall, the temperature and the sunshine and these conditions for the past week have been of such a nature as to prove of great benefit.

The rains have to a certain extent retarded the maturity of the strawberries, otherwise everything is in a prosperous and thriving condition. Normal weather from now on will insure an immense yield of all crops in all of Oregon, except in the grazing country, where rain must fall copiously for their streams, wells and crops of grasses.

On the 22d a thunder storm passed over Portland, giving hail to part of the surrounding region. This thunder storm is one of the earliest on record.

CORRESPONDENTS' REMARKS.

THE DALLES.—The past week has been very fine for growing crops. The average temperature has been 57 deg., which with the cloudy, moist atmosphere, a continuation of the previous week, has been of great benefit. The grain and every growing plant give great promise. Locust trees are in bloom, currants are in the market, cherries and peaches are well grown and promise well.

WALLA WALLA.—The rainfall has been very beneficial, especially to the wheat crop, which promises an enormous yield.

LONE ROCK, GILLIAM COUNTY.—Fruit trees are now in bloom, although the weather has been cold and rainy. There has been frost on the ground frequently this week.

(While the fruit trees are just now in bloom in the southern mountainous regions of Gilliam county, the fruit has long since formed and is now quite large in many of the sections of the state.)

NOLIN, UMATILLA COUNTY.—On the 21st rain fell, 22d heavy wind and showers prevailed, the 23d was warm with scattering clouds, 24th cloudy, 25th warm and clear, a shower during the night; 26th calm, cloudy or hazy; very warm with indications of rain or wind. The weather has affected the crops very favorably.

ST. HELENS.—The 20th, 21st and 22d were rainy, with severe showers of hail, which damaged slightly early gardens. The 23d was cloudy and on the 24th it rained nearly all day [illegible] 24th, and the weather continued warm and bright up to the 27th, when cloudy weather and rain set in.

FOREST GROVE.—The cool weather has not affected wheat or oats. The wheat has good color and promises well in this locality.

TILLAMOOK.—There were three very heavy frosts during the week, but no injury resulted.

OREGON STATE [illegible] STATION.—The rainfall, temperature and sunshine have been about the average and has affected crops very favorably. The average temperature for the week was 59 deg.

MOUNT ANGEL.—All crops are in a good condition.

HUBBARD.—The fall-sown wheat is beginning to show the effects of the cool weather, and spring-sown grain is starting well.

EOLA.—Fruit will be plenty in this vicinity. The few light frosts have not probably cut off any more fruit than what will improve the remainder.

ALBANY.—The small amount of sunshine, together with the moist state of the soil and atmosphere, has been favorable for all kinds of crops both farm and garden.

LEBANON.—The weather of the past week has been very favorable and has made crops of all kind grow very fast.

CRESWELL.—Winter and spring-sown wheat is above the average. The oat crop is good. Grass was never better for this time of the year. Fruits, such as prunes, pears, cherries and apples are well set.

BANDON, COOS COUNTY.—This has been a wet week. The rain was soft and warm, and everything is growing as usual at this time of the year.

ROSEBURG.—Farmers report this season to be three weeks ahead of former years and the yield of crops will be much above the average. The grain and grass fields could not look better.

GRANT'S PASS.—The temperature for the past week has been much above the average, near 80 degrees. The crops are progressing finely.

JACKSONVILLE.—Crops are progressing finely. The weather is very favorable.

LAKEVIEW.—Cattlemen want considerable more rain. On account of very little snow in the mountains, there will not be sufficient water to keep the streams and springs running for grass and watering stock.
